All Are Executed For Slaying Of Patrolman During Hold-up

LITTLE BRAVADO BY ANY OF QUARTETTE

Gruesome Scene As Four Are Lead To Death One At A Time

By JOSEPH HARRINGTON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 10.—Four smooth-faced youths—they looked for all the world like scared children—walked into the death chamber at Sing Sing last night and were electrocuted for the murder of Patrolman James M. J. Killian in a Fifth avenue hold-up.

In 15 years, that buff-walled, rectangular chamber had not reeked of death so much as it did last night. One witness collapsed during the third execution and was dragged out. Others masked their faces with handkerchiefs and turned a greenish-white.

Executions Start.

Newman H. Raymond, Jr., came first, because he was the weakest

He came, at the dot of 11, stumbling into the high-ceilinged chamber, between two burly blue-coated guards. His shaved head was rolly from side to side, his face a sickly white.

It is doubtful whether he saw the 50 men who filled the pews which faced the squat chair and overflowed into a semi-circle around him. His eyes were glass, and they were fixed on the chair. It is doubtful whether he saw Executioner Robert Elliott methodically kneading the electrodes in a pail of brine; doubtful, too, that he appreciated the incongruity of the box lying on the table behind the chair, the box in which Elliott carried his paraphernalia.

He stumbled across the gray concrete floor. Ten steps to that squat oaken chair, bristling with straps. A

NEAL BOWMAN DIES IN CHAIR

(International News Service)

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Jan. 10.—Neal Bowman, 33-year-old desperado convicted of the murder of 17-year-old Comer Franklin, went to his death in the electric chair at seven minutes past midnight today.

Bowman, whose gangs had terrorized Ohio and Kentucky, had boasted he would never go to the electric chair. Offered a big repast for his last meal last night, the youthful killer shoved it aside and drank only the coffee.

Bowman, accused of many crimes, paid the supreme penalty for the murder of young Franklin, the Tennessee youth who wanted to quit the Bowman gang. Bowman said Stanley Mercer, now serving a life term for killing George Kaufman, Camp Nelson storekeeper, was the killer.

PENDLETON, Ind., Jan. 10.—The gruesome task of combing the wreckage of Pendleton's town hall for victims of the terrific blast which made a shambles of the frame building last night, was resumed by workers today.

Three bodies were removed last night, and at least four more are thought to be buried under the debris. Fifteen persons were injured.

Despondent Man Takes Own Life

Clarence J. Lorshbough Fires Shotgun Charge Into Body Early This Morning

Clarence J. Lorshbough, aged 55, of 219 Park avenue, ended his life at 12:40 this morning, by firing the contents of a twelve-gauge shot gun through his body in the region of his heart.

Lorshbough had been despondent over lack of employment, members of the family of Clark E. Peterson, with whom he made his home, told Coroner Orville Potter. He left a note two weeks before Christmas intimating he intending committing some rash act, and members of the Peterson family had been watching him closely. They had hidden all guns but evidently Lorshbough had succeeded in spiriting the shotgun to the cellar, and shortly after the family retired last night, they were awakened by the sound of a shot. Rushing to the cellar, Mr. Peterson found the body in front of the heater.

It was evident that Lorshbough had taken a fire hook, used to rake the furnace, to trip the trigger of the gun.

Mr. Lorshbough was born at Sinnamahoning on March 17, 1881. He had lived in New Castle for the past 12 years.

There are said to be three brothers living, George, Harry and Charles Lorshbough, addresses unknown. Two brothers, Wilbur and Alonzo, are dead.

No time has been set for the funeral services as yet. The body is at the George Morrow funeral home.

Seize Seven In Armored Car Hold-Up Probe

BROOKLYN ROBBERY NETTED GANG $427,000

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Seven men were captured in a surprise raid on an uptown apartment today and whisked immediately to headquarters to face witnesses to the $427,000 Brooklyn armored car robbery in August, 1934.

In addition, police planned to confront them with employes of banks recently held up in nearby New York and New Jersey towns. Authorities said the men lately have been operating a lucrative policy racket. Only the identity of one prisoner, Archie Stewart, was revealed. It was in Stewart's apartment that the men were captured.

Police said that when they smashed down the apartment door, the captives were hurling adding machines, currency and policy slips out the window.

The Brooklyn stick-up was one of the most daring in criminal history. Armed with machine-guns, several bandits held up the driver and guards of an armored car outside the Rubel Ice Company plant and made their get-away with nearly a half million dollars in cash.

Market Prices Spurt Upward

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The stock market spurted on a broad front today with a number of leading issues rising into new high ground for 1935 and 1936.

Steel shares set the pace at midday with gains running over 2 points. Bethlehem Steel common and preferred and U. S. Steel preferred all set new highs.

Gains in farm equipment shares ranged to 5½ points, Case running above 100. Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Radio, Anaconda, Childs Co., and a dozen oil issues also penetrated new high ground. Chrysler was up a point in motors.

All groups shared in the improvement, which was based on speeding up of the bonus in congress, the farm parley in Washington seeking a substitute for the AAA and the spiking by President of rumors of further dollar devaluation.

MAHONING AVENUE CONDITION CITED

Ask Improvement Of Cherry Street And Opening Of Clayton Street

Residents of the Seventh Ward appeared in council session at the city building today and requested the city to improve Mahoning avenue, Cherry street, open a portion of Clayton street, and improve Plum alley.

Those who spoke in favor of the proposed improvements were Ray Horchler, Archie Morne and Mrs. Joseph Cooper.

Horchler pointed out that important industries are situated along Mahoning Avenue and Cherry street. He also stated that if Clayton Street were opened throughout it would be possible without detouring to reach two cemeteries and a church.

He said Mahoning Avenue between the viaduct and the P. R. R. crossing and Cherry Street between the bridge and the P. R. R. crossing were in poor condition and suggested they be put through as WPA projects.

Mornes told of Seventh ward residents having asked a former council to make the improvements and said nothing had been done.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—Two handwriting experts today reported that the script of an amazing letter to Governor Harold G. Hoffman, which declared Bruno Richard Hauptmann innocent of the Lindbergh murder and begged mercy for him, is "very similar" to the handwriting of "J. J. Faulkner," the mystery man sought for two years in the Lindbergh case but never found.

The experts telephoned their sensational findings to Hoffman, according to William S. Conklin, press secretary to the governor. Later to-

Court Will Meet In Executive Offices Of State House At Trenton

HAUPTMANN NOT TO LEAVE PRISON

(BULLETIN)
(International News Service)

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—The court of pardons will meet in the executive offices of the State House tomorrow morning when they weigh the fate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, it was announced today.

William S. Conklin, press secretary to the governor, said:

"The governor has asked me to say the court will meet in the usual place—in the executive offices of the State House."

The meaning of this statement was immediatelyy clear—that the court will not hear the plea of Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the doomed man himself.

Governor Hoffman had stated earlier that Hauptmann would not be brought out of prison.

There remained a possibility that the court might meet at the State House and adjourn to the prison. This possibility is remote.

Wallace And Farm Leaders Ponder Plan For Aid To Farmers

By L. W. MEREDITH
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Spokesmen for farm organizations representing more than 3,000,000 farmers, who have received $925,459,777 in AAA rental and benefit payments since 1933, met today with Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace and his chief aides to try to work out some plan in lieu of the invalidated AAA to continue aid to the farmer.

Behind closed doors Secretary Wallace opened the two-day session with an outline of what the administration considered possible courses of procedure.

The first was pre-destined to reach the wastebasket, dissolution entirely of AAA and giving up of the federal aid idea.

Five Possible Plans

Five possible means of establishing aid without violating provisions laid down by the supreme court in its death-knell sentence on AAA were prepared by Wallace and his aides to lay before the delegates. These were:

1. Export debentures to pay the farmer the difference between cost of production and market prices abroad.

2. Domestic allotments to pay the producer subsidy on products consumed domestically.

3. Appropriations to states for "little AAA" programs in each state, similar to the federal-aid road system of allotments.

4. Land leasing, by which the government would lease lands from the farmers and withhold them from production, instead of outright payments to the farmer for withholding the land.

5. Direct appropriations to the individual farmer for reducing production, instead of the secretary of agriculture fixing the payments

After the opening session in Wallace's office, the conferees will organize into committees to study the situation and develop recommendations to congress.

SELECT PHILADELPHIA AS CONVENTION CITY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—The Democrats who came to town two days ago broke and $400,000 in debt departed today about that much richer and in a militant frame of mind after selecting Philadelphia as the site for the national convention on June 23.

The enormous deficit which has been hanging over their heads since the Al Smith campaign of '28 can be cleared up as a result of this week's activities. They expect to realize approximately $200,000 from the Jackson dinners, perhaps more, and Philadelphia tossed an equal amount into the pot to get the convention.

Auction Off Convention.

The national committee, with Chairman Jim Farley in the role of auctioneer, literally placed the convention on the auction block, with Philadelphia, Chicago and San Francisco all bidding. Each offered initially $150,000. A majority of the committee and Farley himself wanted to go back to Chicago for sentimental and other reasons, but when the poker-playing Philadelphians raised the ante to $200,000 and other considerations the Chicagoans dropped out. House Approves Bonus Measure In Vote At Noon

Overwhelming Vote Is Cast In Favor Of Immediate Full Payment

NO METHOD GIVEN FOR RAISING FUNDS

Bill Will Now Go To Senate For Action—Presidential Veto Forecast

By ERIC FRIEDHEIM
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—For the fourth time since the historic bonus march on Washington in 1932, the house today approved immediate full payment of war veterans adjusted service certificates. By overwhelming vote, members passed and sent to the senate the "United" bonus bill backed by leading veterans organizations and evolved through a compromise among opposing congressional factions.

The vote was:
Against the bonus 59.

Speaker Byrns, who has opposed the bonus in the past, today voted for it.

No Method Of Raising Money

While directing payment of the bonus immediately, the measure leaves for future determination how the money is to be provided. Prior to the final vote, members rejected a proposal by Rep. Treadway (R) Massachusetts, to pay off the certificates with unexpended emergency appropriations held in the treasury.

Jointly sponsored by Democratic Reps. Patman of Texas, Vinson of Kentucky and McCormack of Massachusetts, the bill is estimated to cost the federal government $2,282,350,000.

Ignoring an almost certain presidential veto, house leaders propelled the bill to passage with lighting speed, curtailing debate to the minimum and strangling every amendment offered from the floor.

Alexandria Sees Mock Air Attack

(International News Service)

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Jan. 10—Scores of airplanes and warships playing the role of an "enemy" easily identifiable as Italy "attacked" Alexandria, site of the major British fleet concentration, today in the second big mock fight here since the Anglo-Italian crisis arose.

Beginning before dawn, the raiders tested the boom defense that was stretched across the harbor when part of the British home fleet was first sent to the Mediterranean.

Anti-aircraft guns ashore kept up a rapid fire as the attacking airplanes dropped scores of "bombs" upon the city, terrifying thousands of Egyptians who thought the raid be real.

Lawrence County's No. 1 Dog Has Short Life

Lawrence County's "Number One Dog" is gone. Perhaps you never heard of him, certainly his name was not listed among the blue bloods of the canine world but "Silver" was the number one dog of this county.

He got that distinction by the fact that his master, little Peter Biondi, son of Alderman B. J. Biondi of the Eighth Ward was given tag number one for his dog. Peter was proud of the distinction and "Silver" appeared to be also.

But "Silver" is gone.

Stepping out into South Jefferson street near where the Biondi's live, "Silver" got mixed up with a truck, and the truck won. "Silver" was killed and Peter Biondi is inconsolable.

"Silver" was a terrier of parts. Not a thoroughbred but to his master he epitomized all the virtues that a dog should have. And now he's gone and the distinction of being Lawrence County's number one dog goes to number two.

AWAIT GOV. ALLEN'S ANSWER

Lively Echo Of Huey Long Death

ASSERTS BODYGUARD MAY BE REAL SLAYER

(International News Service)

BATON ROUGE, La., Jan. 10. Louisianans, regardless of political affiliation, today breathlessly awaited Gov. O. K. Allen's answer to the sensational challenge of a heart-broken father, Dr. Carl A. Weiss, Sr., Baton Rouge physician.

"Stop slandering the dead," the physician demanded of Gov. Allen in a letter which he made public last night. He charged that "in all probability" Sen. Huey P. Long was assassinated "not by my son but by one of his own bodyguards."

The physician, in his letter, denied either he or his son had ever taken part in any alleged "plots" against Long, and challenged the governor and the "share the wealth" party to either refrain from naming his son a party to a murder plot against Sen. Long, or prove the charges and lay them before the grand jury.

Dr. Weiss' Son Slain

Dr. Weiss' son was slain by a Long bodyguard as the senator fell, mortally wounded.

State administration leader had charged Dr. Weiss, Jr., had drawn the fatal "long straw" at a meeting of conspirators to do away with the senator.

Friends of the young man said today that they believe Sen. Long was shot when he went to the capitol to speak to the senator about gerrymandering his father-in-law, Judge Pavy, out of office; that Sen. Long insulted him and Weiss struck out at the senator, drawing the fire of one of Long's bodyguards. They asserted the shot hit Long instead of Weiss, and that it was only after a bodyguard started grappling with him that Weiss drew his own gun.

MYSTERY LETTER ASSERTS BRUNO IS INNOCENT

day they will make their formal report.

The letter was signed "J. J. Faulkner," the name of the mysterious person who exchanged $2,980 in Lindbergh ransom bills at a New York City bank in May, 1933. "Faulkner" was one of the chief suspects in the Lindbergh crime until Hauptmann's arrest.

Asserts Hauptmann Innocent

Written in plain, literate style, it asserted Hauptmann is innocent of the crime for which he is scheduled to go to the electric chair next Friday night. The letter intimated Hauptmann came into possession of the $14,870 ransom money found in his Bronx home through his stupidity and greed, that he bought the "hot" money in hopes of becoming independently wealthy.

Governor Hoffman received the letter only recently, when it was discovered among the hundreds of letters he receives daily on the Hauptmann case it created a sensation among his investigators.

Secretly Examined

The missive was taken to New York immediately where two experts were secretly put to work on it to compare the writing with that of the signature on the now famous bank exchange slip filled out in 1933. Enlarging the specimens to 25 times their normal size by means of photography the experts worked a week before reaching their conclusions.

Their report will be submitted to the court of pardons here tomorrow morning when they meet to pass on Hauptmann's plea for mercy.

Fantastic Twist

If the report of the experts and the full implications of the letter are accepted, the epochal crime mystery will have taken one of its most fantastic twists of all.

Those close to the governor concede, pending a formal report from the handwriting experts, that a clever forger might have written the three-and-a-half page letter, but they pointed out the possibility that here, at last, was the real "master mind" of the Lindbergh crime coming out of the shadows to try to save an innocent man at the eleventh hour, when hopes seems gone.

There were unconfirmed rumors at the state house that similar letters have been written by the supposed Faulkner to Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the slain baby, and to officials who helped convict Hauptmann.

PHILADELPHIA STARTS PLANS FOR CONVENTION

to bring 100,000 visitors and $4,000,000 in business to this city.

The Philadelphia municipal auditorium, where the four-day meeting will be held, has a seating capacity of 13,200 with room for an additional 1000 seats on the stage. It is one of the newest and most modern of auditoriums in the country and has only been in use since June 1931. There are no view-blocking posts and the hall has a sound amplifying system described as second to none.

Many Meeting Rooms

In addition to the main auditorium, the edifice has 68 meeting rooms of various sizes—more than enough to permit every state to have one for the first time in national convention history.

Tentative plans for putting the convention hall in shape are already being worked out by Edgar S. McKaig, president of the board of trustees of the auditorium. "Special booths to serve as state headquarters for the various delegations will be set up in the large exhibition hall of commercial museum, adjoining the auditorium," McKaig said. "This will eliminate a great deal of confusion. There will also be a sub-post-office."

The entire basement of the auditorium will be transformed into headquarters for approximately 1,000 newspapermen.

Hotel reservations, including a few requests for whole floors, have been pouring into the city from all over the nation. Possibility that central city hotels might be sold out by the end of the week was mentioned gleefully by hotel men.

through Senator William G. McAdoo was at no time seriously considered, although McAdoo said he would meet the Philadelphia offer.

The Democrats come east for their first convention since the fiasco at New York that resulted in the nomination of John W. Davis and one of the worst defeats in the party's history. Since that time the Democrats have preferred to go west.

Governor Earle Makes Plea.

It was not only the money, but some effective and high-powered oratory that swung the decision to Philadelphia. Gov. George H. Earle, Pennsylvania's youthful Democratic governor, and Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, national committeewoman, pleaded eloquently for a Democratic national convention in the Keystone state as a recognition of what Earle called "the reawakened democracy" of Pennsylvania.

A Democrat sits in the governor's mansion in Harrisburg, a Democrat (Joe Guffey) sits in the senate from Pennsylvania for the first time in many years, a Democrat barely lost the mayoralty of Philadelphia in November—all this in a state whose name has been synonomous with Republicanism for more than half a century, in a state that furnished the Republicans with the leadership of Cameron, Quay and Penrose.

Bait Held Out.

The bait was held out that a Democratic national convention in Pennsylvania would provide just the needed push to put Pennsylvania in the Roosevelt column this year. It was attractive bait. Also, the idea of nominating their candidates in the shadow of the liberty bell and Independence hall tickled the sensibilities of the members.

"You don't need to go to the middle west," shouted Gov. Earle at one point of the proceedings. "After that AAA decision, there is no doubt how the middle west is going to vote in '36."

The Philadelphia offer really totalled up to about $250,000. In addition to the certified check for $200,000 which the Philadelphians laid in Farley's lap, they offered free use of the municpal auditorium, and free concessions about the place, which, if the convention lasts long enough may run into real money.

As Farley said, "its been a long time since Democrats have seen any money like that."

But it took a final White House okay before the matter was settled. During a short recess while the bids were being considered, the White House was asked about preferences. President Roosevelt is understood to have said that all cities looked alike to him, and that it was up to the committee. The committee went where the most money was.

Characterized by its proponents as a relief measure, to aid to feed the veterans, the bill cancels all interest obligations incurred by those who have borrowed on their certificates.

Unpaid interest at the present time totals nearly $300,000,000.

"As an inducement to veterans who prefer not to take advantage of their right to cash in their certificates at once, the bill directs payment of three per cent interest per year on the present value of the certificates until the original maturity date in 1945.

Unless the senate provides for some method of payment, the house will be forced to enact additional legislation to raise the required money.

While authorizing payment of the certificates, the bill does not give the treasury authority to make disbursements for this purpose out of general funds.

Steel Shipments Are Above 1935

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Though December showed a small decline, shipments of U. S. Steel Corp. for 1935 were up approximately 28 per cent over 1934, Myron C. Taylor, chairman, announced today.

Shipments of finished products last month were 661,515 tons, off 20,305 tons from shipment of 681,820 in November, but far above the 418,639 tons in the same month of 1934. Shipments in December, 1933, were 600,639 tons while in 1932 this amounted to only 227,576 tons.

For the year shipments totaled 7,371,299 tons, exclusive of year-end adjustments against 5,925,873 tons in 1934.

FOUR YOUTHS PAY DEATH PENALTY IN SING SING PRISON

guard shoved him, gently, and he sank into it stiffly. There were two more guards working on him—four in all—each rapidly strapping an arm or leg.

The Rev. Doctor Arthur Peterson, he was reading carefully, blandly, from the book:

"Oh, my God, oh, my God, I trust in thee—"

First One Is Dead.

The current whined high, faded, whined, faded, whined again. An immaculately clad man in the front row, a plump, well-groomed man, lifted a handkerchief daintily to his nose. His ruddy color was fading somewhat.

Three whirrs, three fading sighs. A guard nodded and two doctors stepped toward the chair.

Two stethescopes were placed on the bared chest.

"The man's dead," he said.

They lifted Raymond out of the chair, and put him on a white wheeltable. Him—Newman H. Raymond, Jr., aged 21, the son of a preacher, a reformer, a former major in the army. His mother, Anna, was laying in an automobile just outside the prison—unconscious. She had fainted 20 minutes before.

It was 11:04. Elliott was frowning over his helmet and leg-electrode. There shouldn't have been that curl of smoke.

Second One Appears.

Amerigo Angelini, 21, was next. He was not as weak as Raymond, but not too strong. He didn't look at anyone, except Father John McCaffrey, who was carrying a black crucifix. He didn't have to be shoved. He sat in the squatty, bristling chair by himself. Father McCaffrey held out the crucifix.

Angelini glued his lips to it. Glued them...did you think of that, Amerigo, when you fired at Killian in Gropper's luggage store ten days less than a year ago?

You had guts then, Amerigo, remember? When the judge said you were to die, you sneered, like the rest of them, and swapped mash notes with the others, notes that silly girls had sent you, and Raymond, and Orley, and Gilbride?

Not sneering now, Amerigo. Your lips are away from the crucifix. No sound coming from them, but you can read them easily:

"Oh, my God, I am most heartily sorry for having offended thee, forgive me my sins, because I dread the thoughts of death and the pains of hell, but most of all because—".

Elliott has walked back to his niche, left front. There is a click, a whirr—and Amerigo's body leaps convulsively against the straps. No curl of smoke this time. Nothing but that convulsive jerk, the slump, the jerk, the slump, jerk, slump, jerk.

Three times, and the doctors step forward again.

"The man is dead."

Spectators Affected.

You think, standing there in that semi-circle in front of the chair, that hours have passed. You think you'll never breathe again. There's a thick something in your nose. The smell of burning death. Amerigo Angelini, aged 21, is dead. His mother is in a car outside of the jail, crying, crying, crying.

The chair is empty now. But only for a minute. That golden oak door, right front, opens. In marches Thomas Gilbride, aged 30. There is a cigarette between his lips, dangling recklessly. Father McCaffrey is praying for him, praying of heaven, repentance and God.

A dark-haired youngster, Gilbride, alias Rodney. There is a smile on his lips. A brave smile, in a way... I'll show them I can take it...he flips the cigarette on the floor, breezily. He sinks in the chair. There is Tommy Gilbride, whose father was killed in a mine accident, whose mother married again...he couldn't get along with his step-father.

Smile, Tommy, smile....

What? Your lips are curling the wrong way, Tommy. You're crying, Tommy. Crying. Just as the mask slips over your face, too. And you'd been so brave up to then, so dashing, nonchalant.

Whirr. Silence...whirr, silence... whirr, silence.

"This man is dead," he says it awkwardly, mumbling the words.

Last One Meets Doom.

In comes Orley . Raymond A. Orley, aged 20, of Grand Rapids, Mich. He's the one who stepped out and fired the shot that drilled Killian through the temple.

Orley isn't snarling now. His right leg is gleaming whitely as he steps through the golden oak door. He sits in the chair. Orley, the copkiller. The hard-boiled guy.

Father McCaffrey offers him the crucifix.

Elliott has ceased his everlasting puttering with the electrodes. Guided by his lean hands, the helmet descends over Orley's head.

It can't be possible that Elliott has lost his calmness. But somehow the helmet is misplaced. You can still see Orley's face after it is fastened. Orley's face, twisted and white.

This time there is a furious squeal as the current goes on. You can see Orley's face distort weirdly. There is a snap, a crackling of leaping current, and that fat curl of smoke rises again from the right leg.

Orley's body lunges against the straps, hard. You have Elliott's word for it that the man in the chair doesn't feel a thing...but isn't that an expression of utter agony twisting Orley's features.

The doctors are busy again. Are the doctors turning green, or is it the light, or your eyes?

"This man's dead."

A prison guard has your elbow. "The air will fix you up, buddy." You stumble out and gulp air. Clean, wet air.

Council Favors Airport Project

E. J. DAVIS ENTERS STRONG PROTEST

During council meeting at the City building today council approved the proposal that an airport be erected with the aid of $162,000 federal funds, on the site of the present landing field and adjacent land on route 422.

The adoption of the motion did not authorize the expenditure of $10,000 for land necessary, but will result in the U. S. army sending an engineer here to advise city and county officials of all details relating to the proposed airport.

Edward J. Davis spoke vigorously against the spending of any money for an airport. He declared taxpayers now are burdened and said the expenditure should not be made, in view of the dismantling of the Carnegie steel plant, and charged the city with "wanting to buy toys for a few".

The "toys", according to the gist of his remarks, took in the airport and airplanes, which drew exceptions from Mayor Charles E. McGrath, who told Davis that the council, like Davis, believes in economy, but that air transportation of today has become a big factor Maintenance, without any cost to the city, can be arranged, the mayor stated.

He also declared that the erection of airports fits in with the national defense proposed by the U. S. army and asserted that airports and airplanes could not be characterized as "toys". He said the motion adopted today did not authorize the expenditure of any money for land.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Secretary of State Hull today agreed to eliminate a phrase from the administration's new neutrality bill which its critics charged would empower President Roosevelt to unite with the League of Nations in imposing economic sanctions against warring nations.

Hull consented to the elimination at a conference with the senate foreign relations committee, after explaining the state department had placed an entirely different interpretation on the phrase.

It was in Section 3 and would authorize the president to impose embargoes on shipment of any commodities, in excess of peace-time exports, to a warring nation when "to refrain from placing such restrictions would contribute to a prolongation or expansion of the war."

Its elimination left in the bill phrases empowering the president to impose such restrictions only when to do so would "promote the security and preserve the neutrality of the United States, or to protect the lives and commerce of nationals of the United States.

Junior Council of the Jewish Women met Thursday evening with Beatrice Gonick on Winter avenue, who entertained jointly with Florence Shapo. Plans were completed for a scavenger hunt on January 21, with Miss Gonick, chairman in charge.

The feature of the evening followed, when Rabbi Norman Diamond of Temple Israel gave a book review on St. Clair Lewis' composion, "It Can't Happen Here". Refreshments served by the hostess followed.

Progressive Bridge

One of the most enjoyable social events for Progressive Bridge club members was the affair held Thursday evening in the home of Mrs. Elmer Kurtz, East Washington street. Three tables of cards were kept busily in play during the early hours, Mrs. Russell Crane and Mrs. Merle Groce capturing the honor score awards. A short business session ensued.

The hostess served a most delicious lunch, with her daughter, Sally Lou Kurtz, assisting. Seasonal appointments prevailed. Plans were made for their next meeting, to be held January 16 at the residence of Mrs. Frank Schneider on Court street.

MAHONING BOOK CLUB LUNCHEON YESTERDAY

Luncheon and a pleasantly informal social hour were enjoyed Thursday afternoon by the Mahoning Book club members at the residence of Mrs. David Mackey, Winter avenue.

Mrs. Mackey, assisted by Mrs. J. F. Rowland, served luncheon to the fourteen guests at 1:30 p. m. A short business meeting and chat followed. A special guest was Mrs. I. C. Bowman.

In one week, on January 16, Mrs. A. R. Mornes, of West Clayton street, will have the club at her home for a luncheon-meeting.

A. A. A. GOES BUT FARM PROBLEMS REMAIN

ANALYZING the condition confronting the country and the farmers as a result of the Supreme Court decision eliminating the A. A. A. the Philadelphia Inquirer emphasizes the fact that the farm problem is still one that is serious and requires able efforts at solution. The paper reflects on the situation as follows:

Without reference to the Supreme Court decision declaring the Agricultural Adjustment Act unconstitutional, the Kansas Agricultural Council has adopted a resolution calling for "such constitutional legislation" as may be needed to "place agriculture on an equal footing with other industries." Mark that word "constitutional." The fact that AAA methods were illegal does not mean that legal ways for helping the farmer can not be found. They can and should be found.

The trouble with the Roosevelt Administration has been the audacity with which it has plunged into law making, heedless of the limits laid down by the Constitution. These New Dealers took desperate chances and trusted to luck. The President himself indorsed and urged passage of the Guffey coal bill regardless of its doubtful constitutionality. The haste with which measures were put through under whip and spur opened them to attack and subsequent review by the Supreme Court. Thus NRA fell and AAA goes with it, with some other enactments fairly certain to follow.

However, for the present we have only to deal with AAAA and what is to take its place. Whenever the Repubicans have assailed dubious New Deal legislation, the answer always has been, "Why don't you give us something better?" And no longer ago than Friday night Mr. Roosevelt challenged his critics to promote repeal. The retort was immediate "The Supreme Court is attending to that," and attending to it in a perfectly constitutional manner, be it said. AAA goes into oblivion because it was unconstitutional.

Elimination of AAA, however, does not erase the farm problem, which is of many years' standing. That the purchasing power of the farmer should be equalized with that of industry has been conceded. An effort was made to accomplish results through the Farm Board created during the Hoover Administration. It was an experiment and it failed. The AAA of President Roosevelt was likewise an experiment, but despite its processing taxes, its payment of checks for restricted crops and its contracts for lessened production, it offered no permanent solution. We have been importing great quantities of wheat and corn and other agricultural products. Our export trade has been heavily hit.

Farmers accepted the checks in exchange for regimentation of a sort, because there was nothing else for them to do. If the truth were known, it would be found, we think, that what the farmers want is a domestic market yielding them a profit with opportunity to sell their surplus abroad, but with freedom from government dictation. The Supreme Court has wiped the agricultural control slate clean. We are back again where we started. It becomes the duty of leadership to discover and apply a new formula.

The Administration now has busied itself on proposals for new farm legislation. But the Administration has proved that in framing farm aid laws it is far from infallible. The situation invites competition from other political groups, particularly the Republicans. Indeed, the challenge for action is peculiarly to the Republican leaders. They have been accused of offering nothing constructive. The chance is now afforded them to accept the challenge and lay before the farmers a plan more acceptable than anything the Administration may suggest.

One reason why agricultural exports have dwindled is because of the competition of other countries, growing and selling at lower prices. If farmers could sell in the domestic market with profit and could export their surplus without loss they would be in a comfortable condition. It is not unreasonable that old propositions should come in for reconsideration. There was the equalization fee. There was the export debenture plan, to assist in the exporting of surpluses. These proposals of other years might at least provide the basis of discussion for a new, workable, constitutional farm aid program.

That the problem is difficult no one can deny. The farmers require some form of safeguard against surpluses and collapsing prices. AAA, entirely apart from its illegality, did not furnish a satisfactory solution. It would appear that lessons learned from AAA, together with farm proposals of the past, should help in the establishment of an agricultural program which, while constitutional, would be economically sound and truly constructive.

The government will use only Guffey coal. Along with the other consumers, it may hope for a mild winter.

Swindlers are wicked, but it must be a dreadful temptation to see a rich sap who hasn't the backbone to say no.

GOOD NATURE

This much I've learned along the road:
Good Nature bears a heavier load
With less of straining
And sooner comes to rest than those
Who daily magnify their woes
With loud complaining.

I often hear the scoffers say:
"You cannot laugh a care away,
So why pretend to?"
But I reply to those who scoff,
What woes does grumbling frighten off
Or put an end to?

What brings the summer rose to bloom?
The sunshine or the days of gloom?
When winds are howling
And cold and bitter blows the storm,
Can man keep either dry or warm
By constant growling?

I do not claim that man can smile
And laugh at trouble all the while,
For that were folly,
But this I know when rough the road
Good nature better bears the load
Than melancholy.

Had Bryan Been Elected.
For Jews In Germany.
Night Clubs And A Jump.
Automobiles, Telephones.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE

TESTIMONY by Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan and his partner shows that William J. Bryan, as Secretary of State, objected to shipping American money abroad to finance the big war and was overruled by Woodrow Wilson, who brought pressure to bear and encouraged profitable lending by American bankers. There was a commission, or rake-off, on every loan.

HAD BRYAN been elected in place of Woodrow Wilson he certainly would have saved this country ten thousand millions of dollars that it will never get back, and saved the country from the ludicrous spectacle of an American President gallavanting around Europe to enjoy being met at the railroad station by King George and Queen Mary, taken home to sleep at Buckingham Palace, and worshipped as a new saviour of the world for a while.

If any other megalomaniac President of the United States ever suggests conscripting Americans in a war not our own to be shot for his glory, he will be told by those Americans:

"Go and get shot first and tell us how you like it."

THE LONDON HERALD reports a ten-million-pound fund, something over $49,000,000, to be collected among Jews all over the world, to move all or a great majority of Jews from German soil under a four-year plan.

Nothing would be more important than such an experiment, if it should prove feasible. It would teach Hitler and his Nazis in 10 years more about the value of the Jewish people to a nation's commerce and general prosperity than they could learn otherwise in a hundred years.

THE AMOUNT of money suggested seems inadequate. While the Jews might be permitted to depart, they probably would not be permitted to take with them what money they have left.

There are 600,000 Jews in Germany, and fifty million dollars, less than $90 each, would not suffice to transport Germany's Jewish population and establish it in other countries.

"Nobody can put anything over on me."

Described by reporters as "one of Broadway's most beautiful blonde show girls," she was, in reality, a poor creature paid to display herself in insufficient clothing as part of a night restaurant "floor show."

She killed herself after being discharged, having spent the night "making a round of night clubs with a girl friend and two gentlemen friends."

THE NIGHT CLUB round lasted until six in the morning, the gentlemen friends went home, the miserable girl went out of the window.

She was mistaken in her statement "nobody can put anything over on me." The stuff that night clubs sell did it.

SIGNS of recovery, most important, are increased sales of automobiles, increased use of telephones. Mr. Gifford, of the big telephone

All Of Us

By MARSHALL MASLIN

ONCE—

Once I was waiting at some crossroads of war—waiting for a signal just before dawn, a signal that would send men in blue to attack men in gray. . . . And as we waited in the chill darkness, I heard a bird singing in a tree by a shrine, singing so loud I thought he'd split his little throat for joy. . . . A peasant-soldier whispered to me that it was a nightingale. . . . And I felt ashamed of men and their deeds, His song was so lovely; what we did was so ugly.

Once I saw a hawk come flying high over a hill. . . . And near that hawk was a tiny speck that was also a bird. . . . A valiant little fellow, circling and pecking and darting away, harassing that great cruel bird, driving him from the heavens of that smaller bird. . . . The little bird won. . . . And I knew that even a man by little, repeated deeds of valor may drive the great hawk of fear from his life.

Once as we drove around a turn in the night, in the western foothills, suddenly we came upon a coyote. . . . For an instant he was full in our headlights—and then he drifted, floated, faded away into the night and was gone. . . . We do not think of the coyote as beautiful, but he was beautiful, beautiful as anything can be.

Once, as I lay lazily in a field, I saw a wasp or perhaps it was a spider, hurrying across the earth. She came to a little mound, I saw her disappear through a hole, saw her reach upward and draw a tiny earthen manhole into place, and was gone. . . . And though I looked and looked I could not find that little trap door—was so precisely, so cunningly devised to hide her home from my prying eyes.

Once we had a dog and he was a friendly fellow, as a rule. . . . But a youngster teased him brutally, and our dog attacked and bit. . . . That night a policeman came to shoot our dog. . . . And my tough, brave brother tried to fight the policeman and keep him from killing our dog. . . . The memory of that little kid trying to save his dog makes me weepy.

At Jimmy's home town a number of earthquakes had occurred, so, for safety, Jimmy was sent to stay with an uncle who lived many miles away.

About a week later, Jimmy returned home with a note from his uncle which read: "Am returning Jimmy herewith—please send me the earthquake."

I am seeking an explanation of this phenomenon: I frequently wake up at five o'clock in the morning and from then until the alarm at seven o'clock, I am unable to sleep soundly. However, the instant the alarm rings I am completely weary and feel as though I could sleep without stirring until noon. Many other persons report similar experiences.

It's a hard matter to make men who have worked hard all their lives think they can get along without working, but there are lots of that kind now. And they do get along without working.

It is to be said that there was only a nickel between the man who worked and the man who didn't. The man who didn't work had the nickel.

ESSAY, ON THRIFT

A careful perusal of the editorial page of the Baltimore Evening Sun over a period of several days was adequately rewarded when the following vicious essay on thrift was encountered in Christopher Billopp's column. It is being reprinted, without comment.

"Thrift," he writes, "is saving a dime by shining your own shoes. It is sending a telegram only when somebody is dead. It is having the old dress dyed a different color and brightening it up with a girdle of a contrasting shade. It is buying shoes that were the style last year.

"It is resisting the temptation to have somebody clean your motor car and doing it yourself. It is using only one match to light four candles. It is having the old felt cleaned and reblocked and getting your wife to take the spots off your neckties so that they will do until Christmas.

"It is waiting for movies to reach the second-run houses. It is turning out all the electric lights except those that are being used. It is having one kind of soap for the family and another kind of soap for guests. It is buying tooth paste by the gross and making one tooth brush last a year. It is writing one letter to Aunt Susie and having the other members of the family add postscripts.

"It is skimming the cream for coffee and cereal off the top of the milk bottle. It is getting books from the public library and rushing them back before two weeks is up. It is waiting until you get into town from the suburbs and asking a friend if you can use her telephone for a few calls.

"Thrift is, in short, watching the pennies so carefully that you are enabled to live within your income with a little to spare and thus can afford such luxuries as taxes, charities, miscellaneous contributions and investments that do not turn out so well."

Love is blind in spots, anyway. It never sees the other members of the family.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY

In speaking of a person's faults,
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember, those with homes of glass
Should seldom throw a stone;

But talk of those that sin,

And from that point begin.

Until he's fairly tried,
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide;
Some may have faults—and who has not,
The old as well as young—
Perhaps we may, for aught we know,
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan,
And find it works full well;
To try my own defects to cure
Before of others' tell;
And though I sometimes hope to be
No more than some I know,
My own short comings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Then let us all when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word would do,
To those we little know,
Remember, curses sometimes, like
Our chickens, "roost at home;"
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

Good Taste

By FRANCINE MARKEL

By FRANCINE MARKEL

Dear Miss Markel—I will be necessary for me to wear a tuxedo very soon. I am a bit puzzled as to the shade of my overcoat. Will it be necessary to have a black or blue one or will my light tan one be appropriate? E. G.

Answer—A generation ago, all men wore black Chesterfield or Inverness overcoats with their dinner or evening clothes. Even today, of course, many men continue to wear the Chesterfield coat, considering any other type of overcoat incorrect for evening wear. But motoring has changed styles to a great extent and many well-dressed men now wear heavy ulsters to parties—even formal ones—if they drive their own cars in severely cold weather.

This is the age of practicality, when people take liberties with dress conventions. Of course, the darker the overcoat you wear over your dinner jacket or tail coat, the better you will look. But if your only overcoat is light tan, don't develop an inferiority complex about wearng it

What Arkansas Thinks!
Flaw In Pension Plan!
Train Ride Reveals Scenes!

By LESLIE EICHEL
Central Press Staff Writer

EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—One gets new reactions talking with people and observing conditions while traveling.

Take the brakeman on the train traveling from Arkansas and southern Missouri into St. Louis.

He's for Roosevelt through and through. He's for the NRA, the AAA, and every one of the alphabets except relief. There, he believes, something else must be done. Young fellows are drawing relief money who oughtn't. He believes in large pensions for the aged—not the laughable kind provided in the present security bill. He even believes the Townsend plan might work—but he finds a hitch to it. You couldn't force the recipient of the $200 a month to spend it, because there'd be no sure way of checking up. Some of them might bury the money. Thus, maybe, there'd better be another pension plan.

As for Mr. Roosevelt—he's done his best (he said he'd make mistakes) and those who are trying to turn the people against him are doing so for a reason. Just ask workers and farmers, and if they know nothing will happen to them if they tell you they're for Mr. Roosevelt. And there'll have to be something again to regulate hours and wages—especially of women and children.

HOME TOWN PRAISE

Then, there is this editorial, clipped from a paper in Little Rock, Ark., home town of Senator Joseph T. Robinson, majority leader in the senate. This editorial endorses the "bringing home the bacon" idea, a subject of some debate:

"With the new session of congress just around the corner and Senator Joe T. Robinson agin due to play a leading part in the senate, the following editorial from the Baxter Bulletin at Mountain Home should be of interest to the senator's friends:

"'Any way you figure it Senator Robinson is Arkansas's biggest asset. During his long tenure in the senate he has done more for the state than any other man who has represented us in either branch of congress. He is the senior senator and is the most powerful man in the senate today.

"'Time and again he has brought the bacon home to Arkansas. It does not make any difference whether you are for the New Deal or against it. It doesn't make any difference whether Roosevelt is elected or not. It doesn't make any difference whether you are a Democrat, Republican, Townsendite, Liberal, Progressive or Radical. He can do more for you and more for the state in the senate than any man that could be sent there.

"'He has proved his worth. He has been wrong, but he has been right more times than wrong. He has worked faithfully not only for Arkansas, but for the nation. The least the central committee of Arkansas counties could do would be to endorse him for the office again and save him the tiresome, exhaustive effects of a statewide campaign.'

"That is not fulsome praise but a statement of fact which can be verified by Senator Robinson's record during the long years he has served. Not only has he found time to 'bring home the bacon' for his home state—but he has been a real leader in the nation's affairs."

PROSPERITY

Last, but not least, we see on our journey a rebirth of another evidence of the old prosperity.

A group of furniture dealers boards the train—and takes possession of the train.

The stories they tell are not fit for ears of decent women, who, never-the-less, have to sit in the cars and be insulted.

And the porters, being servants, have to serve these yelling men—their superiors—under a torrent of epithets.

At midnight, the weary porters, who must watch their step or be reported for insolence, have to put the yelling businessmen to bed, taking fond care of them.

The men have been free with their money and the railroads welcome their business. They merely are some of the better citizens on their way to a buyers' convention.

Several unescorted young women en route to school and a few elderly women, to whom railroads do not seem to cater, shivered in their seats.

Perhaps the railroads could manage to segregate all the drunks, including their women friends, in club cars, thus retaining the goodwill of both sides.

The World AND THE Mud Puddles

LOST LETTER

The original copy of Abraham Lincoln's letter to the Widow Bixby, which has been accepted by both British and American authorities as the finest example of "the most eloquent diction extant," has appeared according to Dr. Louise A. Warren, director of the Lincoln National Life Foundation.

"It is difficult to estimate the commercial value of the manuscript" Dr. Warren said, "but the fact that an original copy of the Gettysburg Address, which passed through a dealer's hands in 1930 brought $100,000, gives one some idea of the price which Lincoln collectors have placed on such rare items."

The letter was delivered to the Widow Bixby at Boston, on Thanksgiving Day, 1864, and the following day the contents were printed in a Boston paper. Since that time, search has been made for the original copy at Oxford University, England; J. Pierpont Morgan Library; Library of Congress; Huntington Library and other places where rumor has located it; but it has never been found.

Jan. 10, 1776.—"An anonymous 47-page pamphlet was published in Philadelphia that was to have a decisive effect in American history. Titled "Common Sense" by its author, Thomas Paine, who had recently arrived from England, it urged the immediate declaration of independence from England by the 13 Colonies. Possession of it made any person liable to death, but its circulation through the Colonies crystallized the sentiment which resulted in the declaration adopted the following July 2.

As part of the works of atheist Paine, it is reading matter that is excluded from many school libraries today.

HELPFUL HINTS

A reader claims an equal measure of lard and soda made into a paste will remove warts after several applications.

If you use your salt, sugar and flour sacks to make tea towels, doilies, etc., you can remove the lettering by rubbing thoroughly with lard and letting it stand overnight, then boiling in soapy water.

Mildew stains can be removed by soaking the damaged article in sour milk or butter milk for two hours and laying in the sun to dry. When dry rinse.

Wall paper can be cleaned by covering the broom with a soft cloth. But start with a clean cloth and keep changing it so as not to streak the paper.

Morgan Denies Panic Charges

Denies Contention His Firm Brought On Panic In Foreign Exchange In 1915

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—His deep bass voice rumbling with emotion, J. P. Morgan today bluntly denied contentions of the Senate munitions committee that his firm in 1915 deliberately brought on a panic in the foreign exchange in order to force the administration of President Woodrow Wilson to permit flotation of an unsecured public Ango-French loan in this country.

Earlier, testimony and documents revealed that the British pound dropped sharply in this country when the Morgan firm stopped supporting it. Committee members contended this was a move by the Morgans to apply pressure for a policy favorable to foreign loans.

Morgan, who has taken little part in the rapid crossfire of questions and answers, got the jump on the committee today at the outset.

"I'd like to make a short statement," he said, as the committee was called to order by its chairman, Senator Nye (R) of North Dakota.

"All right," said Nye.

The tone of the banker changed. He leaned forward in his chair, his hand and arm lightly emphasizing his words.

"It is quite clear to me," he said, "that the idea is in the mind of the committee that we (the Morgan firm) brought on an exchange panic in order to bring influence on the government.

"I want to deny in the most clear manner that I can that such a thing was done by us at any time. It's one of those discredible things that is foreign to our history and foreign to our traditions."

Morgan ended his brief outbursts in a loud voice, leaned back and completed the little statement with a phrase that seemed to place a final pat on the whole incident.

"That is all," he said, "I thank you, sirs."

GRETA GARBO is reported seriously ill in her villa in Sweden, trying to cure throat trouble.

Instead of going to Sweden, the talented young lady should have gone to the roof of her California villa and spent several hours each day with her throat exposed to California's sun, eyes protected by dark glasses.

Her throat would probably have been cured in a week. Sunshine is the only cure-all.

THAT ANCIENT sporting gentleman, Joe Humphries, famed prizefight announcer, supposed to be dying in a New York hospital, had himself removed to winter sunshine in Florida, promptly gained ten pounds. He says:

"Squinting at the sun, there's my doctor."

The sun is the greatest of all doctors. Unfortunately our indoor lives during sunshine hours and our clothing at all hours keeps him away from us.

"Vinegar Bible" Is Tourist Attraction

Typographical Error Which Made "Vineyard" Read "Vinegar"

(International News Service)

BOSTON, Jan. 10.—A typographical error, one of many in a 14th century edition of the Bible, is the reason why that edition has been called the "Vinegar Bible," it was revealed on the 400th anniversary of the first English printing of the Book of Books.

Chapter XX, St. Luke, bears the heading "the parable of the Vinegar" instead of "the parable of the Vineyard." Numerous other misprints were made throughout the edition.

A copy of that particular Bible, one of the few in this state, was presented by "His Gracious Majesty King George II" to the Old North Church (Christ Church). It is the object of intense interest of sightseers as it reclines, preserved for posterity, in a glass-enclosed stand in front of the church.

The printing was the work in 1717 by John Baskett and was later styled "a Baskett-ful of errors."

Insurance Firm Contests Claim

Not Satisfied That George Matuza, Was Killed By Accident

PRINCIPAL WITNESS AGAINST WESTWOOD

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—"Who killed Cock Robin?"

That was the question that confronted police today with the revelation that an insurance company was contesting the payment of compensation to the family of George Matuza, who was to have been chief witness in the Westwood murder case.

S. L. Rosenquist, claims manager of the Liberty Mutual Insurance company, said the company was contesting payment on the grounds that when Matuza was crushed to death between the jaws of a machine at work it was not an accident but perhaps a "perfect crime." He added:

"It comes down to this — Who killed Cock Robin?"

Principal Witness

Matuza was to have been the state's principal witness against Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood indicted for the slaying of his wife, Martha. His constable, Tim Drexler, was indicted as an accessory.

Many persons interested in the case have expressed a belief that for Matuza's death to have been "coincidental" was "too perfect" and explanation. Officials of the Pittsburgh Forgings company, at Coraopolis, where Matuza was employed, like the insurance investigators, do not consider the accident theory as tenable.

Possibilities Expressed

For Matuza to have been slain, it would have been possible for the plotter to stand by his side, draw his attention from the dies of the powerful machine and then push his head in the opening when he leaned forward to watch his work. To release the safety device on the pedal would have been the work of a second. Screams would have been easily drowned out by the roar and thunder of machinery in the factory.

The position in which Matuza's body was found might indicate he attempted to resist being pushed into the machine rather than voluntarily placing his head between the dies. A coroner's jury held the death was accidental.

Matuza had given police a statement identifying Westwood as the man seen running from the Westwood house as the fatal shots were fired.

Junior Chamber Will Hear Mayor

Smith said that the city's new mayor will likely present an activity proposal to the membership that night.

Over the holiday period the organiation was idle. At its last meeting Judge W. Walter Braham spoke.

Numerous chamber matters will be discussed Monday evening by the members. A number of guests are expected to attend.

Woman Slashed Daughter's Throat And Attempted To Commit Suicide

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Jan. 10—Mrs. Myra Archibald, 45, who slashed the throat of her daughter, Edna, 11 and then drank wood alcohol and cut her own throat, because she feared her husband, Albert J. Archibald, would lose his job, did not find her rendevous with death today.

For hospital attaches reported her daughter and she will recover, although they are still in a critical condition because of loss of blood.

To Promote Operas

Top, Mrs. J. A. Jardine; below, Mrs. E. H. Morris

If Mrs. John A. Jardine of Fargo, N. D., president of the National Federation of Music clubs, and Mrs. Etta Hamilton Morris of Brooklyn, N. Y., president of the New York State Federation, have their way, opera will not be confined to a few large centers, but will be heard universally. The two have dedicated themselves to see that opera is produced, under the auspices of their organization, all over America. The public demands it, they say.

Census Findings Are Confidential

Business Survey Enumerators Under Sworn Oath As Work Begins

As a corps of trained enumerators prepared to begin contact work in the government's business and manufacturer's census in Lawrence county today, Supervisor Ralph T. Jordan, directing the survey, issued a statement concerning their work.

Jordan's statement follows:

"The information sought is to be used strictly for statistical purposes. During the emergency from the depression, it is necessary, in planning business for the future for business men to have an accurate inventory of the various phases of our economic structure.

Every merchant, baker, broker, contractor, manufacturer and all others in the field of production and distribution rightly considers himself an inherent and important factor in the national economic system.

"In compiling statistical data concerning his business operations the census has no intent to hamper or restrict his functions and activities, or inquire into his private affairs. When his report reaches the census bureau, its identity is immediately buried in carefully compiled totals which include but do not reveal his figures. The information is assembled with like data from similar business activities in a statistical measurement of the field of business in which he serves.

Oath Taken By All

"All enumerators and all persons connected with this census are under oath not to disclose or discuss any information concerning any individual business. You may rest assured this oath will be observed. All census enumerators have official identification papers which they are required to show upon request.

"Likewise, I wish to advise you that the information given can not be used for purposes of taxation or by any other governmental agency. The census law expressly forbids the use of census returns for any other purpose than that for which they are obtained—strictly for statistical tabulations which will be made by the Census Bureau.

The law also expressly forbids the publication of this information in any way by which the operations of any individual business are disclosed.

"It will cover all concerns in the following classifications: Retail trade; wholesale trade; hotels; amusements; insurance companies; real estate agents and brokers; construction; trucking and warehousing; banking and finance; bus transportation; business services; non-residential building operations (office buildings); broadcasting and advertising agencies. The two last named are being taken by mail canvass. All of the others will be taken by direct canvass through the field enumerators under my supervision."

Complete Data On Rural Roads

Questionnaires Have Been Sent To Holders Of Registration Cards

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Complete information on rural roads in Pennsylvania is being compiled as a part of the Highway Planning Survey being conducted by the Department of Highways in co-operation with the United States Bureau of Public Roads.

Questionnaires have been sent to nearly 200,000 holders of motor vehicle registrations; permanent weighing stations will be provided in several locations throughout the state; and road inventory work and traffic counts are now under way in twenty counties in the south and southeastern sections of the state.

Rural information is secured by counties, each county being divided into blocks for the census.

The traffic is set up to include: Daily year-around observations at 432 key stations on major routes; 3000 lesser stations will have four eight-hour counts during the year, and 2617 stations on secondary roads will be checked for one eight-hour period during the year.

Results of the study will be used in shaping a comprehensive highway program which may be followed without interruption through successive highway administrations.

LEAVE COUNTRY IF YOU CAN'T SALUTE FLAG SAYS PROFESSOR

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—America is not the place for school teachers and students who refuse to salute the American flag on religious scruples, Cameron Ralston, director of religious activity at Washington & Jefferson College, told a local educational meeting.

Commenting on the recent refusal of teachers and pupils to honor the nation's colors, Ralston said:

"It's a base-born morality born of a statute. It's an odious patriotism that is born of compulsion, but there is enough of the ideals of our forefathers still in the nation to demand respect and allegiance of everyone in the nation.

Those who cannot salute the flag would be better off in some other country."

MORE APPLICANTS FOR CITIZENSHIP

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—Applicants for American citizenship have increased 50 per cent during the last year in Philadelphia, according to H. B. Read, assistant director of naturalization for this area.

Read described the increase to the possibility of war in Europe and the fears of applicants they might be called to the colors of their native lands.

Most applications, Read said, come from Germans with Russians, English, Irish and Italians in that order. The number of Italians seeking citizenship is increasing steadily.

Scrapping war material will insure peace if it includes the hanging of orators and slogan-makers.

Written examinations required of applicants for licenses as real estate salesmen, will be held tomorrow in five cities, namely, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Harrisburg, Wilkes-Barre and Erie. The examinations are for those who have never held licenses. The examinations cover real estate transactions, kinds of documents involved, validity of titles and legal responsibilities of buyer and seller.

Prothonotary John A. Edgar has asked the county commissioners to provide additional filing cases for his department, as all the boxes are now full. It has been suggested that room for a filing case can be found along the east wall, to the left of the entrance to the office. In the good old days when there was no three day wait for a marriage license, this space was generally occupied by couples waiting their turn, but it isn't needed any more as the new law has driven away the major part of the marriage license business of Lawrence county.

County assessors in the various wards of the city report that there will be little in the way of new improvements to add to their books for the past year. House building has been practically at a standstill, but a few garages have been built. Some of the assessors have reports of buildings torn down to save taxes.

Common pleas court will convene on next Monday morning for the trial of civil cases. This will be the first regular term at which Judge W. Walter Braham will preside.

JELLY TOPS

During the year, save all cellophane and cut into four-inch squares. These can be used on jelly glasses that have no lids. When the paraffin has hardened, dip the cellophane quickly in water, put over the jelly glasses and fasten with a rubber band. It is neat, quick and clean.

NAVAL NOTES

By M. L. NIXON
Naval Recruiter, Second Floor Federal Building

Upon the arrival of a man-o'-war in a foreign port, there is fired a salute of twenty-one guns. The firing of a gun salute dates back to the introduction of ordnance aboard ships. It was the custom in those days, for war vessels to have their guns loaded while at sea in case of meeting with pirates. Upon the approach to a fort on the shore, the guns would be fired. The expenditure of ammunition indicated to the people that the mission was a friendly one. That is the background of the present day salute by guns.

In a letter to Secretary of the Navy Swanson, Secretary of State Hull has expressed his appreciation of the co-operation received from the navy department in the establishment of the radio station at the American legation at Addis Ababa, and quoted the following message to him from the American charge d'affairs: "Please convey to the navy department our thanks for its co-operation in loaning efficient personnel and equipment with which perhaps unusual and unique difficulties have been successfully overcome."

Adequate air forces for the navy are becoming more than ever a certainty, it was indicated last week.

Rear Admiral Earnest J. King, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, announced that there is a possibility that by 1940 the navy will have an air force adequate to a treaty strength navy.

OVER 20,000 POLICE GUARDING CUBAN POLLS

General Election In Progress Today

Nine Persons Are Injured In Outbreaks During Night In Cuba

WOMEN VOTING FOR FIRST TIME

(International News Service)

HAVANA, Jan. 10—Nine persons were injured in Santiago during the night as eight bombs blasted an overture to today's general election, the first in nearly 12 years of rebellion bloodshed and political chaos in Cuba.

More than 20,000 police and troops guarded the 5,000 polling places throughout the island to prevent further strife and to maintain the administration's and army's pledge of an impartial election that, it is hoped, will at last stabilize Cuba and open the way to economic regeneration.

Women Voting

Women went to the polls for the first time in Cuba's history, bringing to 1,657,000 the total of registered voters who will choose among these presidential candidates.

Dr. Miguel Mariano Gomez, 45, twice mayor of Havana, candidate of the liberal, Republican and Nationalista coalition. Dr. Gomez is given a slight edge to win the election and lead Cuba for the next four years.

Gen. Mario G. Menocal, 56, former president, and nominee of the Democratic (conservative) party.

Dr. Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, also, a former president, who was born in New York City 65 years ago. His party, the Centrist, has abandoned political activities, and Dr. De Cespedes says he does not consider himself a candidate, because he regards the election as illegal. His name is on the ballot, but he has little chance.

Also being elected today are 24 senators, 152 representatives, six governors, 126 mayors and other minor officials.

Hitler Declares Rearming Vital

(International News Service)

BERLIN, Jan. 10.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler today excused Germany's rearmament on grounds of necessity "in the face of foreign political vicissitudes," and in the same breath reasserted Germany's peaceful intentions.

The Reichsfuehrer's first public utterance on arms during the current European crisis was made at the annual New Year's formal reception to the diplomatic corps in the presidential palace.

Census Enumerators Ready For Contracts

With most of their supplies on hand, Lawrence county's force of enumerators for the census of business and manufacturers was prepared today to inaugurate their census-taking task. Within a day or so actual contact work will start.

The district head of the census job, stationed at Pittsburgh, is expected to visit the local office shortly, Supervisor Ralph T. Jordan said today.

The 26th congressional district census will have its headquarters in the Federal building here until the work is completed.

"GREAT HOUSE" TO BE RECREATIONAL

AMBRIDGE, Pa., Jan. 10.—The Pennsylvania Historical Commission is preparing plans for reconditioning the "Great House" and other historical property in Old Economy, Dr. Lester K. Ade, superintendent of public instruction, announced.

An architect has been appointed, and it was believed that work will be started by next spring. The 1935 legislature provided $10,000 for the purpose.

Wife and Child of Slain Doctor

HALT WORK ON SWIMMING POOL ON CEMETERY SITE

(International News Service)

KENTON, O.—Work has been halted by order of City Solicitor Fred W. Markley on Kenton's W. P. A. swimming pool and bath-house project.

Site for the new swimming pool was at Pioneer cemetery, for many years considered abandoned because most of the bodies had been removed to the new plats in Grove cemetery here.

Relief workers were busy digging for the new swimming pool, removing bodies from the graves in their path and re-interring them in a plat set aside in the other cemetery when the city attorney discovered that a possibility existed that the city had no right to authorize the moving of the bodies.

Hewitt Case May Get Into Court

Seek To Decide Whether Or Not To File Criminal Charges In Case

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—Definite decision was expected to be made today by local authorities on the possibility of bringing the sterilization case of Ann Cooper Hewitt, 21-year-old heiress, into criminal courts.

District Attorney Matthew Brady ordered a conference of his deputies and police inspectors investigating the case following word from his chief investigator, Deputy District Attorney August Fourtner, that all of the principals here had been questioned.

Fourtner and Police Inspector George Engler concluded questioning of nurses at a local sanatorium where the young heiress was sterilized eighteen months ago.

"I believe we have gathered all of the evidence we need to make a decision," said Fourtner, reporting to his chief.

BESSEMER HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

ASSEMBLY, JANUARY 3

Mr. Frederick presented the first program of the new year on January 3, 1936. Following a number by the orchestra Archie Young conducted devotionals. Frank L. Coen, county game protector, gave us an idea of what the state is doing to keep the woods stocked with game. Mr. Coen also gave up an idea of his work by telling some of his experiences with hunters and game.

Mr. Frederick, assisted by John Marshall and Willard Olson, illustrated some new rules and plays in basketball.

Announcements were made by Mr. Nord. A pep meeting conducted by June Shoup and Lois Chaddock concluded the program.

ASSEMBLY, JANUARY 8

To accommodate Mr. Capezzuti and Dr. Dimit, assembly this week was held on Wednesday, instead of Friday. Schedules for Wednesday and Friday were interchanged. The following program was presented:

Devotions—Archie Young.

Address—"Science and Life," Dr. Beatty H. Dimit.

Announcements—Mr. Nord.

Dr. Dimit is from the science department of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College. He made his subject very practical in showing us one particular way in which science and our lives are related. He centered his talk on iodine and how the lack of iodine affects our health. His experiments proved very interesting.

BESSEMER NOTES

Bessemer high basketball teams meet New Wilmington on the local floor Friday, January 10. The girls' game starts at 7:30.

The eighth grade is planning a party for Tuesday, January 14, in the high school. Wilbur Kursel and Helen Fabyancich are in charge of plans.

On Friday at 4 o'clock the Bessemer Reserves play George Washington Junior high on the George Washington floor. This is the third game on the Reserves' schedule.

It looks as if Bessemer high school has received a useful Christmas present. After vacation a nice set of bleachers appeared on the stage. These bleachers will afford students an opportunity to sit together, thus making a good cheering section.

The Lawrence county school directors, under the leadership of Mr. Syling, county superintendent, will hold their annual convention in the Bessemer high school auditorium on Thursday, January 16. Special music will be furnished by the high school music organizations. Lunch will be served the directors at noon in the cafeteria.

Things even up. You can do wrong without breaking any laws, but you can also break a lot of laws without doing wrong.

Reich's Students Done Up Brown

(International News Service)

BERLIN—Germany's formerly so colorful students now are drab brown on festive occasions.

Bernhard Rust, Reich Minister for Education, issued a decree calling any representation on such occasions in the old colorful caps, jackets, ribbons, swords and high boots "undesired," and "requesting" all students to appear in brown shirts.

COULDN'T YOU FAKE IT?

"All the mechanical toys you make seem to be very successful," said the visitor.

"Yes, said the inventor. "I've had only one failure."

"What was the matter with it-" asked the visitor.

"Too life-like. It was a toy tramp, and it wouldn't work," came the reply.

SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL NEWS

WPA BRIGHTENS BUILDING

When the students returned to school last Monday after a long Chritsmas vacation they were pleasantly surprised to see what at first glance seemed to be another building. Upon examination it was learned that the WPA workers had been very busily engaged throughout the entire vacation with dressing up the interior and also the exterior of the building.

Repairs have been made where needed, paint applied, windows cleaned, floors waxed, lockers dusted and a host of other things completed which were in urgent need of being done.

This is quite an improvement in the appearance of the school, and hereafter visitors will receive a much better impression of our building.

LECTURE DATE GIVEN

On Tuesday morning, January 14, the Senatus Romanus is bringing George Samuel Kendall to the high school auditorium as their yearly lecturer. The speaker is giving an illustrated lecture on science, history and archaeology. Some of the many places and things which Mr. Kendall will show and tell about are the earth's greatest monuments, palace, tombs and gorgeous temples, and heirlooms of the centuries. Also among his group of slides are pictures of Palestine, the Great Pyramids, the Sphinx, and many other important historical places.

Wednesday morning Mr. Kendall visited the various classes to tell the students about his lecture.

USHER MEETING HELD

Mr. Gardner called a meeting of all basketball ushers Friday morning of this week. The purpose of this meeting was to give the new ushers instructions regarding their work at the games.

HI-Y MEETS AT "Y"

Monday evening, December 23, the Hi-Y met at the Y. M. C. A. for their usual weekly meeting. After a short business meeting, the club adjourned to the banquet room where refreshments were served by Bob Young and Jay Jennings. It was agreed that there would be no meeting the next week.

Monday evening, January 6, the boys of the Hi-Y club met at the Y. M. C. A. building.

After devotionals, conducted by Bill Theis, a report was given by Jay Jennings, chairman of the program committee. The program of the month was discussed by the club.

Henry MacNicholas, boys' advisor of the Y. M. C. A., told the boys of a change in the organization of the various Hi-Y clubs. This change will go into effect next semester.

After closing the meeting with the friendship circle, the boys adjourned to the "Y" pool where swimming was enjoyed.

ARITHMETIC QUIZ GIVEN

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week arithmetic tests were given to all students in the junior and senior high schools. These tests, on elementary arithmetic, should disclose some interesting facts.

GALA DANCE IS PLANNED

Friday evening, January 17, will be a gala night at the high school if all signs may be relied upon.

The committees appointed to make arrangements for the senior A-B dance report that this will be one of the best yet if their plans work out.

The decoration committee, with Sara Edwards as chairman, has made plans to change the main hall of the high school into a place of beauty for one night at least.

The orchestra committee has arranged to have the Genevian orchestra to play for the dance. This orchestra has played at most of the school dances in the past few years and has always been very satisfactory.

The entertainment committee, with Bill Broad as chairman, has arranged a program that they say will be the best ever.

Harry Paul and the refreshment committee have made arrangements that the dancers will not die of thirst or hunger.

Jack Rupert and his live wire committee are selling the tickets, and, according to their reports, they are doing a good job of it.

ELECTION NEXT WEEK

Tuesday evening after school Betty Uber, Betty Lou Orr, Evelyn Schook, Emmy Lou Weir and Martha Nell Shaffer met as a Girl Reserves nominating committee with Miss Geraldine Turk. The following nominees were suggested for the various offices:

President—Miriam Clinefelter and Peggy England.

Vice president—Geraldine Getty and Phyllis Elder.

S. B. vs Jr. B, Tuesday, December 17—S. 27, J. 8.

LIBRARY ADDS VOLUMES

Miss Helen Westlake has announced that the library has received a copy of Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler". This is a large edition beautifully illustrated in color by Arthur Rackham. This classic would be of special interest to fishermen and sportsmen. This is not a newly written or published book, as it was written in the 17th century, but it has never appeared in our library before. A new copy has also been received of the Federalist Papers, written by Thomas Jefferson, the famous statesman.

SALT FOR ICY WALKS

Due to the icy condition of the walks during this week, the janitors are kept busy sprinkling the steps of the building with salt each morning to lessen the danger of slipping.

BOOKS GET REPAIRS

A second shipment of books from the library for Dr. C. C. Green's office was being prepared the latter part of this week. They are sent to the administration building where workers of the Works Progress Administration are repairing books.

The first lot that was taken care of by this group returned to the school library in almost perfect condition, and just as serviceable as new books.

DISPLAY UNUSUAL ONE

Quite an unusual and attractive display is featuring the bulletin board of the library this week. This is a large and beautifully made poster, entitled "The Librarian's Nightmare".

Surrounding this caption, which is in the center, are about a score of not called for reserved book slips. The purpose of this display is to openly convey to the public the work which is involved in reserving a book, and when not called for is just useless and wasted effort. Reserved books are placed back on the reserve shelf, at shelf fills, the book goes out of circulation for a while, the student is notified but fails to show up to make claim for the book which he wished to borrow.

This exhibit not only portrays the work entailed in the reserving of books, but it also exposes quite some number of the students who are at some time delinquents.

SCHOOL PERSONALS

Miss Frances Maxwell has returned to school after an absence of several days.

Miss Ethel Kelly returned to school Thursday after being absent the first part of the week.

Peggy England has been absent from school this week due to illness.

Bob McCann has been absent from school due to an injury received while sledriding.

AROUND CITY HALL

Opposition to the order which compelled subordinates to salute superior officers in the police department came from police who disliked giving a salute to persons not in uniform. The order was issued by the chief of police without any previous knowledge by the mayor. However, when the latter was advised of the action he stated that orders of the chief were to be obeyed. Police Chief Haven noted the opposition and believing that, to waive a point might increase harmony, rescinded the order to salute in the same manner as the order had been issued—without telling the mayor of his intention. In explaining this, the chief said the other orders he issued would stand. The order to salute caused considerable talk and temporarily caused some to forget the depression, diminishing coal bin and supreme court decisions.

City Hallisms: This is a surprise administration. Everybody expected appointments January 6 and almost everybody was fooled....J. M. Rise, otherwise Doc, substituted as city clerk when C. Ed. Brown was called from his office....Health conditions are good according to Dr. William L. Steen. So far no one knows of any one being after his berth....Judging from Mayor Charles E. McGath's actions in police court, curiosity seekers won't hear much scandal....Paydays for city employes have been set for the fifth and twentieth of each month by Finance Director J. L. Fink...."Twon't be long until a few appointments will be made according to reports along the Grapevine circuit.

Relative to the cost of a city treasurer's bond, men in the bond business report that for several years there has been made a charge of 3½ per cent on the amount of tax duplicates for his performance as tax collector. During the last several years this rate for collecting school taxes prevailed here.

Municipal authorities of Sharon, Farrell and Sharpsville have rejected all proposed sites for a Shenango Valley airport becaues prices are too high. A proposition to have city of New Castle and county of Lawrence build an airport along route 422 is being considered here. The land would cost $10,000.

Present council has taken no action, up to today, toward passing the 10 per cent restoration of wage measure...Council has awarded a contract to the Atkinson Paint & Glass company to supply the city with a carload of liquid chlorine at $2.55 per hundred pounds, for use at the sewage disposal plant.

DARLINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—Charles Bable, 72, of Darlington, Thursday filed suit in Beaver court for divorce against his wife, Nora, alleging she would not do the cooking, nor keep house; stayed in bed, chewed large quantities of tobacco and deserted him three times, once for a period of two years.

REPUBLICAN LOANS DEMOCRATS PICTURE

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 10.—Alderman E. P. Peffer is a staunch Republican, but Wednesday night he was called upon to aid the Democrats.

Clients at his office today asked where the picture of President Roosevelt had gone.

"I had to loan it to the Democrats for their Jackson Day dinner. Yes that's right a Republican alderman had to furnish the Democrats with a picture of Roosevelt."

USE RYE BREAD

Having no almonds to make a dusting of ground nuts for a cake, an ingenious housewife ground some stale rye bread, toasted the crumbs under the broiler, stirring often, then put crumbs in a fine wire sieve and dusted them generously over the white icing of the cake. Those who ate that cake still think they ate nuts!

ICED COFFEE

For best results make iced coffee after this manner: Prepare coffee double strength. To get the best flavor chill quickly by pouring hot brew over ice cubes or crushed ice in tall glasses. Add cream and sugar to taste. Top with whipped cream or plain cream.

Roosevelt Gives Warning To Those Conferring On New AAA Bill

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—As farm leaders gathered here today to consult with administration officials for a substitute for the AAA, President Roosevelt made it clear he was definitely opposed to the export-subsidy plan, one of the features in a Republican proposal.

"We must avoid any national policy which will result in shipping of soil fertility to foreign nations," the president declared.

Mrs. Pauline Schwab Is 93 Years Old

(International News Service)

LORETTO, Pa., Jan. 10.—Looking in restrospection at a life studded with her famous son's accomplishments, Mrs. Pauline Farabaugh Schwab, mother of Charles M. Schwab, industrial magnate, celebrated her 93rd birthday today.

Born in Cambria county, Mrs. Schwab has seen her son rise from a stage coach driver to a throne in the industrial empire as president of the United States Steel corporation, and later, at the age of 71, head of the Bethlehem Steel company.

She is the widow of John A. Schwab who died on May 5, 1934, after they had been married 73 years.

In addition to Charles M. Schwab, Mrs. Schwab's children are Edward Schwab, Morristown, N. J.; Mrs. David Barry, Johnstown, and Sister Cecilia,, member of the cloistered Carmelite Order of St. Theresa of Lisieu.

Erected for the order in Loretto a few years ago, the monastery was a gift of the Schwab family.

PREPARE OLD POST OFFICE FOR OCCUPANCY

Geting the old postoffice building in shape for the Works Progress Administration has turned out to be more of a job than was anticipated. The rooms were dirty, caused by the long period of idleness and workmen have been engaged in cleaning the floors and woodwork.

As the plan is now, J. V. Downie, director, will get the room formerly used by the postmaster, Joseph T. Beltz, assistant, will get the room adjoining. An office will be provided in the east end of the lobby for W. Leslie Wilson, office manager. Chief engineer H. L. Stewart will have the back office of the old money order department and other engineers will use the front office.

The labor inventory will be on the main office floor of the first floor, while the payrolls and financial men will be on the second floor.

One job that is taking a bit of doing is that of drilling a hole through the foundation wall for the telephone cables. The wall is three feet thick and at noon the men were about half way through it.

The probabilities are that the transfer of employes and desk equipment will be made some time next week.

(International News Service)

CHICAGO, Jan. 10. — Freddie Lindstrom, Chicago Cubs outfielder and former New York Giants third baseman, today was unconditionally released by the Chicago club.

The announcement, made by Charley Grimm, vice president and manager of the Cubs, came as a surprise to baseball followers who had regarded Lindstrom as a star both in the infield and outfield.

Grimm said the club had asked waivers on Lindstrom and that seven clubs in the National League had passed him up. He explained further that the Cubs were planning to use Stanley Hack at third base and Augie Galan in center field in 1936 and that he could not see much activity for Lindstrom.

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A drive for a direct subsidy to farmers and passage of the Frazier-Lemke inflation farm mortgage refinancing bill was approved today by the "Prairie States" bloc of the house.

The group also approved a bill by Rep. Gillette (D) of Iowa for a reduction in the interest rates on outstanding government farm loans to 3½ per cent for the next two years.

Janitor Service To Be Eliminated

Supt. Snyder At County Home Instructed To Have Inmates Do The Work

Expenses of operating the county home can be reduced by about $800 a year it was agreed by county commissioners this morning, by dispensing with janitor service.

Superintendent Perry Snyder is to be instructed to employ inmates who are able to work in doing the work which has been done by a paid janitor.

There are now about 165 inmates in the home. More than half of them are men. Some of the men are too old or too feeble to do any work, but there are quite a number of others, who are fully able to do the work necessary about the home.

It is believed that the able bodied men will be only too willing to assist in doing janitor work. It will help them employ their time, and at the same time it will be a saving to the county. Some of the men have been employed about the garden during the summer, but in winter there is nothing for them to do.

The janitor work will serve to relieve the monotony and at the same time give the men a feeling that they are doing something toward helping the county provide homes for them.

AXE'S MARKET

TAKING CARE OF EWES HELPS 1936 LAMB CROP

A more profitable lamb crop may be expected next spring if attention is given to a few essential details of feeding and management.

Bred ewes will keep in better condition if they are permitted an adequate amount of exercise.

Another important requirement is grain. A little grain fed daily throughout the winter will do more good than the same total amount fed in a short time just before lambing.

By feeling the backs of the ewes with his hands the shepherd can tell more about the amount of flesh carried than by simply looking at the ewes.

Where legume hay is not available it always pays to feed protein supplement, such as bran or oil meal. If corn silage is available it should be fed at the rate of a bushel, weighting about 25 pounds, to each 10 ewes daily.

Salt and good, fresh water also are essential for the well-being of the ewe flock.

HOME-GROWN VEGETABLES FEATURE OF FARM SHOW

Market gardeners are planning to display mushrooms, greenhouse products, and stored vegetables at the 1936 Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg, January 20 to 24.

The usual packs accepted by the wholesale market are suitable for display, and grading is done according to market standards.

White, cream and brown mushrooms in fancy and button grades are eligible for exhibit.

All kinds of root vegetables may be entered. These may be brought from the farm or market garden.

Cabbage, celery, pumpkins and squash are other prospective exhibits. Entries will include five heads of cabbage, 12 stalks of celery, and three pumpkins or squash.

All entries must be made before 8 o'clock the morning the show opens.

MARKET EGGS REQUIRE SPECIAL WINTER CARE

Many egg producers think that all they have to do during the winter months to maintain fine egg quality is to keep the eggs from freezing. It is true that eggs should be gathered frequently, held at a temperature above freezing, and carried to market during the warmest part of the day, but other factors must be considered.

Consider the humidity and the maximum temperature of the egg storage room. In many cases the cellar of the dwelling is used for cleaning, grading, packing and holding the eggs. If kept too close to the furnace, the heat and low humidity will cause the eggs to deteriorate rapidly. Heat and low humidity may cause large air cells, liquification of the egg white, and also show a mottled condition of the egg shell when the eggs are candled. Most cellars in which there are furnaces, are too dry for holding eggs. A small section of the cellar may be partitioned off with insulating material for an egg room. It also may be necessary to hang up wet bags in the egg room, to maintain proper humidity.

Eggs should never be held in the kitchen, for the temperature is too high and the humidity too low for maintaining egg quality. Eggs will not freeze unless the temperature goes below 29 degrees Fahrenheit, but the ideal temperature for holding eggs is between 40 and 55 degrees Fahrenheit.

Another point to consider in maintaining egg quality is the condition under which the egg cases are held. The cases should not be kept in a place so damp that they will become musty. Neither should they be held in a place where they will dry out to such an extent that they will absorb moisture from the eggs and cause large air cells. Keep a few days' supply of cases under the same temperature and humidity conditions that are satisfactory for holding eggs.

LAMB CLUB FIGURES NINE YEARS' PROFIT

From its organization nine years ago the Centre County 4-H Lamb club has maintained an excellent record. Total returns on the 306 lambs raised by 102 club members amounted to $5,416.64. Of this amount $4,402.64 came from the sale of all the lambs in the nine years and the remaining $1,014.00 was prize money.

The average return for each lamb was $16.73 and the return per pen for the nine years averaged $53.16.

Beside the prize money received the club had the grand champion for three years and the reserve champion for three years.

These excellent records were the result of the practices followed by the club which included fitting and showing, methods of handling, selection of feeds, good breeding and control of stomach worms.

FARM ACCOUNTS

The beginning of a new year is the time that executives of most business organizations take an inventory of their business preparatory to the closing of records for the end of the year, and opening them for the new year. The only way a business concern can know their gains and losses is by keeping strict account.

This also applies to the operating of a farm business. Farmers who keep account records find them helpful in checking losses and stopping leaks in their business operations.

The farm account system used need not be complicated. Any simplified accounting system is satisfactory. It will not require much time to keep accounts of this type. The person who keeps the records should have a regular time each day to make their entries in the book so that none will be overlooked.

Account books and assistance in opening them can be obtained from the Agricultural Extension office, 206 Post Office building New Castle.

WINTER CLOTHES NEED TO HAVE SPECIAL CARE

Did you pick your new winter dress for color and style? Does it require too much care? Does it wrinkle badly or get out of shape? These are points too often overlooked when purchasing a new dress, in the opinion of Miss Mary Vogle, home economics extension representative.

Unfortunately there is seldom any guarantee, although some garments bear labels giving information about quality, washing, or cleaning possibilities, which have been tested out in manufacturer's or store laboratories.

Your dress will need pressing. Some synthetic fabrics wrinkle badly and some must be pressed with a cool iron. Experiment with a piece of the material, or use a small portion of a seam or inside of the hem. Many crepey weaves, without reinforcement on the back, will stretch with each wearing and get out of shape.

After coming home from the day's work or shopping, change to a dress in which you can relax without fear of harming. Do not lounge in good dresses. Brush the dress, and hang it in the fresh air for a few minutes. Some women never hang dresses in the closet after wearing, until they are pressed and in order for the next wearing.

Have the best possible equipment in the way of a well-covered clean ironing board, pressing cloth, both thin and thick, and clean cheesecloth pads. If a damp cloth is needed, wring as dry as possible, then remove more moisture by wringing it again in a dry cloth. This removes danger of excess shrinkage and spotting. Press lightly on the wrong side of the garment.

Do not allow spots to remain in clothing. Fats and oils on the synthetic materials soon become oxidized and are almost impossible to remove. These spots often can be removed with an absorbent cleansing powder and a warm iron. Use clean absorbent pads or fresh blotting paper.

If a solvent is necessary use a non-inflammable one. Place a pad under the stain, dip a bit of clean cotton or cloth in the solvent and work quickly with light strokes. Too heavy rubbing often removes the color. If the entire garment is soiled, the solvent is almost sure to leave a ring. Home dry cleaning is not as satisfactory nor as safe as professional dry cleaning.

Velvet, corduroy, and other pile fabrics may be freshened by hanging them in the bathroom and letting steaming water stand in the tub. Keep door and window closed, and steam for an hour or so. Do not wear the garment until it is thoroughly dry. This treatment will often restore th crepey, crinkly finish of the synthetic materials.

Many sweaters, knitted dresses, and some wool dresses can be washed. Measure them carefully, wash and rinse in lukewarm water, squeeze out the water and roll in a both towel to remove more moisture. Stretch to measure on a flat surface and allow to dry slowly.

Keep fasteners sewed on, collars fresh, clothing and hats brushed, shoes clean, polished and in good repair, and you will present a well-groomed appearance.

City Important As Rail Center

Baltimore And Ohio Gives Statistics On Business Handled Locally

CLASSIFY MUCH FREIGHT HERE

Statistics have just been released by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad company, showing the importance of New Castle as a railroad center, particularly as it applies to their line.

A bulletin has been issued by them which is being distributed locally, showing the amount of business done here by this important railroad system.

It is stated that fourteen main line passenger trains are operated through here daily between the east and middle west, and the engines on these fast passenger trains are changed and maintained here.

All the big freight trains operating between the east and west, in either direction, are switched and classified in the yards here.

Although a large portion of their holdings lie outside the city limits, the company paid $2,392 in taxes in New Castle during October. In this same month, the company had 562 employes on its payroll, and distributed the sum of $82,790 in wages.

Their expense locally for water, electricity, and water in October amounted to $2,052, it is stated.

STAMP NEWS FROM EVERYWHERE

BY JOHNRAE EARL, SEC. NEW CASTLE STAMP CLUB.

Read a book on your hobby. This is a bit of information which applies equally as well to other hobbies, but due to the fact that we are interested chiefly in the great hobby of philately or stamp collecting for short. The stamp books which are on the shelves of the Free Public Library of New Castle are very popular and enjoy constant circulation. The next time you go by the library or any of its branches stop in and either consult the catalogue or ask the attendant at the desk.

EVERY INCH A KING

The names of thousands of kings have been inscribed on the pages of history; none was ever a truer leader of his people nor more beloved by his subjects than Albert, king of the Belgians. Few monarchs have worked harder for the good of their people. He visited every corner of his country, mingling with the humblest working people in order to acquaint himself at first hand with the conditions under which they lived. He donned a miner's suit and descended into the shafts and tunnels of coal and iron mines. He rode in the cabs of locomotives, and even learned to operate one. Once he worked all day as a stoker in a steel factory.

It was the World war which brought out his real greatness. The world thrilled at his reply to the Kaiser in August, 1914, when passageway through Belgium for the German army was demanded: "Belgium is a nation—not a highway!" At once he assumed command of the army, ordered the movement of troops to the border.

For more than two months the valiant little Belgian army, consisting of a few hundred thousand men, comparatively untrained and ill-equipped, resisted the onrush of the most efficient military organization in history. This gave the allies, who had been caught by surprise, time to organize their armies; it completely upset plans of the Germans, who had confidently counted on eating their Christmas dinner in Paris; and in all probability turned the tide of the war.

King Albert personally directed his country's defense. He freely exposed himself to dangers, frequently going to the front line trenches and sometimes flying himself over the enemy lines to make military observations. Often he would work eighteen hours a day, and became so exhausted he could scarcely stand.

The whole world mourned when in February, 1934, the gallant king of the Belgians, while engaging in his favorite sport of mountain climbing, lost his footing and fell to death.

Albert's career is eloquently summed up by a quotation which has been inscribed at the bottom of the diploma which was given him when he was awarded the degree of Doctor of Laws by a leading American university at the close of the war. The words are Shakespeare's—"Aye, every inch a king!"

SPEED IS UPPERMOST

Speed is the watchword of the airmail service. This was forcibly demonstrated recently. Tests and trials are continually being made along the line of airmail transportation. Some of the more recent experiments are related below and just show that in a very few years we will be able to get mail from coast to coast in a very few hours.

Recently an American Air Lines plane spanned the distance of 169 miles between Chicago and Detroit in 75 minutes flat. Also on December 1, 1935, Mal. B. Freeburg, crack Northwest Air Lines pilot set two new air records for flying between the twin cities and Chicago, on a regular run. He made the 315 miles from St. Louis to Milwaukee in the record time of 1 hours and 20 minutes. Chicago was reached 32 minutes later, making the total time for the 408 miles in 1 hour 52 minutes. Muscle Shoals, Ala., airport has just opened a new airport and New Castle is also scheduled to receive an enlargement to the now present landing field on the Youngstown road.

PARENTS' RALLY TONIGHT BOOSTS SCHOOL MUSIC

Future Support Of Musical Groups Will Be Talked At Senior High

To promote the cause of public school music locally, a mass meeting of New Castle parents and others interested is planned for the senior high school auditorium tonight at 8 o'clock—the general public is invited to attend.

Invitations carrying the signature of Joseph F. Replogle, head of instrumental music work as Senior high, were mailed out to over 300 parents all over the city who in the past have manifested their interest in musical contests, but Mr. Replogle made it plain that anyone else is invited.

Wil Talk the Future

At the rally the future of musical contests, musical concerts, public band and orchestra appearances and other things will be briefly talked by Mr. Replogle, Principal F. L. Orth and possibly others.

The Senior High's band and orchestra will be there to play numbers for the guests who assemble to plan ways and means by which their interests may be furthered.

"The need is here," Director Replogle declared today, "for a permanent organization of some sort to promote perpetual support for our musical groups. Contests come on us suddenly and we are forced to make a last-minute appeal to the general public—and the public has been mighty responsive in the past! Yet, the best way is to have a group permanently established to appeal for support."

It was pointed out that the idea to gather together interested public school music boosters originated in the minds of part of the group which has so faithfully backed up past affairs.

Rabbi Katz Speaks To A. Z. A. Sunday

Can Explodes; Woman Is Burned

Faulkner Can Aid Hauptmann Parker Asserts

Ellis Parker Says "J. J. Faulkner" Knows About Ransom Money

By KENNETH T. DOWNS
International News Service
Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1936, By International News Service)

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 10.—Ellis Parker, noted Mount Holly detective, today declared that the mysterious "J. J. Faulkner" of the Lindbergh crime can save Bruno Richard Hauptmann from the electric chair if he will come out of the shadows which have engulfed him since May, 1933, and tell authorities what he knows.

Parker, who believes Hauptmann innocent and has been investigating his case for Governor Harold G. Hoffman, said "Faulkner" can explain away the piece of evidence which did most to condemn Hauptmann . . . possession of Lindbergh ransom money.

Amazing Letter

When International News Service disclosed receipt of the amazing letter by Governor Harold G. Hoffman, which two handwriting experts say "Faulkner" wrote, the veteran detective said:

"That is very important. Faulkner can tell how Hauptmann got the money found in his home. I don't mean that Faulkner is necessarily the master mind of the Lindbergh crime, or anything like that, but he knows how he came into possession of some $3,000 in ransom bills and must know how Hauptmann got his bills.

Strap Breaks And Sleigh Is Upset

(International News Service)

LIGONIER, Pa., Jan. 10.—Folks in Ligonier are wondering whether or not rapidly mounting motor accident rate is necessarily due to improved vehicles. For recently they recorded an accident of the old variety—a sleigh accident.

George Welty and Harry Blair, the victims of the upset, escaped as they landed on the icy streets. The pair were enjoying a ride which was interupted by the breaking of a breast strap on the horse. The sudden jerk which followed tilted the sled over on its side.

Sleighing is staging a revival in the Ligonier valley and not a little concern is being felt by the older members of the community who think the youth of the town should stick to the safety of their automobiles.

City Depositories To Be Designated

City of New Castle has secured agreements with four local banks whereby they will act as depositories for city money. All provided ample security for the funds, as follows: Lawrence Savings & Trust company, $100,000; Peoples Savings & Trust company, $100,000; Citizens National bank, $200,000, and First National bank, $200,000.

After the agreements had been referred for investigation and approval to Solicitor R. M. White and Finance Director J. L. Fink, C. C. McKibben, city treasurer, presented a bond in the amount of $30,000, for acting as treasurer and tax collector of the city. Council adjourned but will discuss the bond this afternoon.

Suit Is Brought For "Monkey" Bite

(International News Service)

WYNCOTE, Pa., Jan. 10.—Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Glass, socially-prominent residents of this community, are defendants in a $10,000 damage suit brought by a former domestic, who charges that she was bitten by a monkey while in their employ.

The action was filed in Norristown by counsel for the woman, May Zeuner. The Glass' pet monkey, Miss Zeuner averred, bit her leg last July, inflicting injuries from which she still suffers.

Chinaman Enrolls In Army Unit

(International News Service)

CARLISLE, Pa., Jan. 10.—Major Mo-Sheng Li, a 35-year-old technical expert in the office of the Chinese army medical administration, has enrolled at the Carlisle barracks of the U. S. Army medical field service school here.

Major Li, a native of Hunana Province, China, registered in the basic class at the local school to pursue his chosen profession and career—military medicine.

"I shall be trained to be an army doctor of better service," said Major Li in explaining why he came here after serving for several years in military hospitals of China. He attended schools in China before coming to this country, first in the early 20,s. He took a medical course at Yale University and upon his graduation in 1926 returned to serve his native country until sent here to continue his course of advanced study in the medical field service.

To Make Fight On Social Diseases

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—Charging that preventative methods and treatment for social diseases in Allegheny county were "notoriously inadequate," the general health council, a community fund agency, announced it will carry on an intensive study of the menace here.

The study will be conducted by eleven physicians and a secretary, whose salaries will be paid by the WPA. It was estimated that eight to 12 per cent of the people in this country were afflicted with social diseases, many of whom had not the funds to get medical attention.

The true Public Enemy No. 1 is the trouble-maker who makes brave-hearted people feel sorry for themselves.

Relief Conditions Somewhat Improved

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—The relief situation throughout the country is better this winter than it has been at any time since the depression began, according to Harry L. Hopkins, who, as relief administrator, allotted more than two thousand million dollars for relief, and now has charge of the spending of more than $1,200,000,000 on work relief projects.

Conditions are better, Hopkins asserted, because:

"Benefits that 3,500,000 employables from the relief rolls, and their families, are getting larger than they got under direct relief. The money they are getting under the work relief program, plus the money put in by states, municipalities and local communities, is larger. The people in need are getting better care than they did a year ago."

Hopkins said the average work relief board worker is receiving "just under" $65 a month in federal funds this winter, whereas the average relief was "about $27 a month. States and local communities add an average of 20 percent to the work relief funds—but this includes costs of material, according to WPA officials.

The $4,000,000,000 work relief program, Hopkins revealed, has merely added approximately 1,275,000 persons to work projects, and increased the pay of some 2,225,000 others.

Under direct relief, FERA had 2,225,000 persons on work relief in May his figures showed. The $4,000,000,000 program has provided jobs for 3,541,000. Work projects under direct relief, however, paid an average of only about $29 a month, according to FERA records.

Urged To Help In Saving Bird Life

(International News Service)

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Jan. 10.—Pennsylvania sportsmen were urged by the Montgomery County Fish, Game and Forestry Association to cooperate this winter in saving bird life while snow blankets the state.

The association suggested feeding shelves or shelters be built to prevent starvation among wild flock, suet, crumbs covered with melted fat, sunflower seeds and even peanut butter will be welcomed by the birds and pay dividends in preserving the state's wild life, the group declared.

Ill Luck Seems To Follow The Man

(International News Service)

While Washko sought to prevent his garage from bursting into flames on one floor, a fire broke out in the basement of his business place in West Masontown.

John forgot a blow torch with which he had been thawing out the water pipes in his cellar, when a coal stove became too hot upstairs. The torch ignited burlap sacks around the pipes.

Receipts Of Office Last Year $23,021.99 And Expenditures $15,337.90

38,361 MEALS ARE SERVED PRISONERS

Sheriff Edward D. Pritchard has completed a report for the operation of his office during the past year. It shows receipts of $23,021.99 and expenditures of $15,337.90. Under the budget prepared for last year the estimated cost of maintaining the office was $15,500, so that the sheriff operated the office for $162.10 under the budget.

The receipts of $23,021.90 do not include nearly $8,000 fines which were collected through the office as a result of the "numbers" raids, but which were paid into court and were not credited to receipts of the sheriff's office. The receipts include money collected for serving all kinds of writs and other business connected with the office, while the disbursements, include salaries of deputies and clerks.

During the year the sheriff handled 1,217 prisoners, who served prison days amounting to 12,772. Meals served to prisoners during the year numbered, 38,361.

Expenses of maintaining the office for 1935 were $1000 less than for 1934.

Eleven Rescued At Harrisburg By Cable Lines

Convey Family Of Eight And Three Others From Island to Mainland

(International News Service)

HARRISBURG, Jan. 10.—Rescued from ice and flood-seiged McCormick's Island in the Susquehanna river after supplies had been dropped by plane, a family of eight and three other persons were safe and comfortable here today.

The islanders, marooned by high water and the season's first ice jam, were brought to the mainland in a swaying cable car after a night and a day of anxious waiting. As the river rose, filling the cellar of the farm home, the family of Ralph Sheaffer, head of the stranded household, kept in telephone communication with authorities here.

Plane Drops Food

In addition to Sheaffer, his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Sheaffer, and their three-year-old son, Bobby; Sheaffer's children, Peggy, 17, Dorothy, 15, Ralph Jr., 11, Harry, 8; a boarder at the Sheaffer home, Michael Dugan, and two WPA workers, Edward Fry and Harry Baim, also were taken off the island. Fry and Biam had gone to the island to visit and were unable to leave because of the swollen river and ice jam.

Shortly before the first trip was made successfully in the cable car above the ice and water, foods supplies were dropped near the Sheaffer home from an airplane. The family had reported need of bread and meat.

THRIFTY

Father—So you have been fighting again, eh? You just wait until I get the switch, then we'll go out to the woodshed.

Sonny—But, dad, I did it to save you money.

Father—How come, same me money?

Sonny—Well, it would have cost you money to have my aching tooth pulled, but I had it knocked out by Joe Smacker for nothing.

JUSTICE ROBERTS FOR PRESIDENT?

Informal poses of Justice Roberts

U. S. supreme court's six-to-three decision nullifying the Agricultural Administration act, with Justice Owen J. Roberts, a Republican, writing and reading the opinion of the majority, had one political aftermath, according to observers, and that was the casting of Roberts into the public eye as a possible G. O. P. presidential candidate. Justice Roberts, 60 years old, has been on the supreme court bench since June, 1930. A native of Philadelphia, he taught law at the University of Pennsylvania for 20 years. He was appointed a special deputy attorney general to represent the U. S. government in prosecution of cases arising under espionage act and was named by President Coolidge as one of two attorneys to prosecute the "oil cases" in 1924. Horticulture is one of Justice Roberts' hobbies.

Beaver Falls Man Is Taken In Enon Raid

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—Hearing before a federal commissioner on a charge of violating the Internal Revenue Act was to be given this afternoon to Louis Phillips, 35, Beaver Falls, who was arrested by government agents yesterday afternoon in a liquor raid on an Enon Valley farm.

Phillips was brought here and lodged in a city police station this morning pending hearing before U. S. Commissioner Roger Knox. Federal agents found him hiding in a bungalow on the Darlington township farm, allegedly owned by Patrick Baker, where they reported confiscating a 300 gallon still and other contraband.

The 300-gallon still, the raiders reported, was found in operation. A 400-gallon still was found dismantled, while 12,000 gallons of mash, two gallons of "moonshine" and a quantity of apparatus was found stored about the premises, according to the agents.

Phillips, alleged to have a police record, was the only suspect arrested, but investigation of the case has not yet been completed, authorities said. It has not yet been determined where the illicit liquor was marketed or whether others were connected with its manufacture.

The suspect, according to the agents, was sentenced to five years in 1929 on charges of dynamiting the home of Police Chief Davidson of Beaver Falls, Pa., and was serving a 3½ year parole when arrested. He was sentenced on this count July 8, 1929 and was released from prison December 22, 1934.

Hollywood Saddened By Gilbert's Death

Private Funeral Services Will Be Held For Late Star Saturday

(International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 10.— The nation's film capital dropped its gaiety today to mourn the passing of one of its most beloved members —John Gilbert.

Murmuring "I'm so sleepy, so tired," the great lover of the screen with only a nurse at his bedside, slipped off into eternity yesterday, the victim of a heart attack. Physicians and firemen with an inhalator worked over his motionless body for more than an hour to no avail.

Private Services

And today, as screen celebrities joined with unknowns the world over in grieving over a mutual bereavement, simple private funeral ceremonies were planned for the dead star.

Burial, it was said, will be secret to prevent any untoward incidents such as those which marked the funeral of the last great lover of the films to die—Rudolph Valentino.

Last rites will be held at 11 a. m. tomorrow in the B. E. Dayton mortuary where the body was removed from Gilbert's shrubbery shrouded home yesterday. Rev. Neal Dodd of the Church of the Angels will officiate. The services will be private. Admission being by card only, it was announced.

Wedded Four Times

John Gilbert, 38 years of age, died virtually alone, but not friendless. Four times married, the dashing Romeo of the screen had sought retirement when the advent of talking pictures pulled him from his pinnacle of achievement. Something in Gilbert's voice made it difficult of sound transmission.

His four former wives, now in different parts of the country, sent hurried expression of deep regret—all had been true friends. But in faraway Stockholm, the "one big love of his life," the glamorous Greta Garbo, remained sielnt.

Loved Greta Garbo

In a burst of confidence with a fond friend, W. H. Mooring, representative of British International Pictures Corporation of Elstree, England, Gilbert shortly before his death confessed that his love for Miss Garbo was "the most real thing in my life."

Gilbert and Mooring had been discussing negotiations for the actor to leave for England to make a picture for the British company.

Born into a stage family, Gilbert married four women all connected with the theatre and his name often has been linked with others of the film colony. Gilbert's real name was John Pringle, son of actor John Pringle. He was born in 1897 while his parents were playing in Logan, Utah.

Has Two Daughters

His first marriage was to Olivia Burnwell, who divorced him in 1921. Shortly thereafter he married Leatrice Joy, who bore him a daughter, also named Leatrice Joy.

When this romance ended in the divorce courts in 1926, Gilbert married the beautiful Ina Claire, but this ended in 1931. Gilbert's last wife was Virginia Bruce, by whom he had another daughter, Susan Ann. Miss Bruce divorced him in 1934.

Dr. W. L. Wishart To Speak Here Tonight

Dr. William L. Wishart, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Sharon, will speak this evening at 7:45 o'clock in the Central Presbyterian church of New Castle.

This service is preparatory to Communion on Sunday. The senior choir will sing.

Dr. and Mrs. Wishart and Dr. and Mrs. J. Ralph Neale, of New Wilmington, will be dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Wingerd, Park avenue.

RECEIVES WORD OF NIECE'S DEATH

Joe Knowles, of East Main street, has received word of the death of his niece, the daughter of Mrs. Bessie Farren, of Derry, Pa., which occurred on Sunday. Funeral services took place Tuesday. Death was due to pneumonia. She was a senior in the Derry high school and popular with her school mates, who attended the services in a body.

Glamorous Mae Top Salaried Female Star

That Mae West has the indefinable "something" which pays big money on the screen is proved by cold government figures which show her employers "came up" to the tune of more than one-third of a million dollars for her services during the year of 1934. Lovely "also rans" in the salary race and their "comparatively measly" earnings are also shown here. (Central Press)

What Period Of History Would You Select For Your Life If Possible?

(Special To The News)

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa., Jan. 10.—If you could have lived at any time in history other than the present, where and when would you have preferred to live?

The faculty, who also answered the questionaire, voted by a majority to live in the future instead of the past. According to Prof. Leen Marshall of the department of History: "Too much is known about the past for a historian to ever want to live there, unless a man could have been a Caliph in Bagdad.

War-periods, like the Revolution, Napoleon's France, or the World War period, were almost completely avoided. A few adventurous spirits chose times as the Crusades, Kentucky in the days of Boone, or France during the French Revolution. But the majority chose peaceful days and spots like Tahiti, America in the 19th century, or New England in the days of the Puritans.

Whereas many men students were interested in pioneering periods of history, like California and Alaska during the gold rushes, only two women out of 300 expressed the desire to have been a pioneer mother. The co-eds stuck to the safe and sane periods in history, where women were secure and well-guarded.

Throughout the classes was a scattering of desires to have lived during Biblical times. Most of the girls' choices were based on ages when expensive and elaborate dresses were worn, Elizabethan England, the Gay Nineties, and the Colonial period in America.

Twenty out of the 600 chose the future rather than any time in the past. The South before the Civil War was one of the favorite periods in history. One freshman's sage answer to the query was "America, before the depression.

Only one indicated a desire to have lived in Russia at any time. England and France were the favorite foreign countries. Only five out of 600 were insistent that "1936 in America" was the most desirable spot in history.

My New York By James Aswell

NEW YORK, Jan. 9—Interview with a Young Novelist: (Dont' take it seriously, please.)

Q. I imagine you enjoy writing?

A. Oh, no I hate it. I write only because my social consciousness will not allow me to be silent in these times.

Q. Have you conceived a plot for your new novel?

A. A plot? That's a little old-fashioned, isn't it? My plots are all the same—the class struggle of the proletarian against the oppression of the overprivileged.

Q. But a character,. Surely you must invent a character, or a group of them?

A. Characters are unimportant. Man is my character, man the worker conspiring to throw off the yoke.

Q. Tell me. You know quite a group of the younger novelists and playwrights, Do all of you feel this way?

A. Absolutely! The other night I picked up a book by a bourgeois writer named, I believe, Somerset Maugham. I read only a few pages before I realized the man was merely trying to tell a story. I was so angry that I burned the book immediately and organized a special meeting of the John Reed club before I could regain my composure.

Q. Wasn't there an old-timer, a horse-and-buggy writer, you might say, named Homer, whose principal object was to tell stories? What do you think of him?

A. A bourgeois writer, with no sense of the brotherhood of man. What did Homer write of any importance?

Q. Well, he was, I am told, rather proficient at telling stories orally. Didn't you like the "Odyssey?"

A. A story of Fascist imperialism, pure and simple. Marx would have disposed of him in a footnote, Michael Gold could have summed him up in a paragraph and probably has somewhere.

Q. What do you do when you become interested in a story you are writing? Isn't that a danger you run?

A. I tear up everything and start back at the beginning of the strike.

Q. What will be the subject matter of your new book?

A. The same as my last. I am not kulak enough to need a new subject for every book. It is the typical American scene: Fifteen men have been discharged by the bosses and their starving babies have been ordered, at the point of a machine gun, to eat cakes of sawdust instead of bread. Clifton Fadiman has already approved the idea.

Q. Must all poletrian novels be exactly alike?

A. Absolutely! Otherwise the critics might not see at a glance that they were proletarian novels. Once the critics realize they are proletarian novels, they praise them for that rather than for the mere content of the books.

And now, if you'll pardon me, I must run. My publisher, the so-and so, is trying to gyp me out of $159.90 in royalties.

New Graham Cars Are Most Striking

Distinctively Styled Throughout —On Display At Perry & Bryans, 420 Croton Avenue

Three entirely new cars, the Graham Supercharger, the Cavalier and the Crusader are announced by the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation for 1936. All three are striking in appearance and distinctively styled throughout. The Graham Supercharger in the touring sedan models, will sell at $865.00 at the factory, according to the announcement. This is the first time in automotive history that a car equipped with supercharger has been priced in the lower ranges. The Cavalier is listed at $765.00 factory, and the Crusader, Graham's model in the lowest price field, will list at $635.00 factory, and trunk models feature the entire line.

In the Supercharger, Graham establishes a revolutionary trend in the industry by introducing the Supercharger to the lower priced field for the first time. Advanced and original styling is the dominant note in all three of the new cars, with strong emphasis placed by the company on economy of performance, power, safety and riding comfort. Brilliant new body colors feature all models.

Perry & Bryan, 420 Croton, local Graham dealer, extends an invitation to the public to come in and view the new Graham models.

Correct this sentence: "Saving human life," said the statesman, "is more important than saving the automobile industry."

Using a club or gun to spoil a competitor is savage. Civilized men get the same results by using the law.

23 Missionaries Have Thrills In Wilds Of China

(International News Service)

PEIPING. — Twenty-three U. S. and British missionary men, women and children rowed 800 miles for 18 days on a pair of crude rafts supported by 300 inflated goat skins. They were fleeing from their inland stations in Kansu before a new Chinese communist uprising.

Their extraordinary adventures are being related here.

Fortunately, the upper reaches of the Yellow river which they covered from Luanchow to Paotou were free from the usual menace of banditry. Frequent rapids and tricky currents, however, gave the 18 adults and 5 children about all the thrills they needed. One dark night a raft with its sleeping Americans went adrift.

Three of the native Moslem raftsmen went on their knees in supplication to Allah, while the Chinese merely cursed. The practical Christians ordered the Mohammedans to get busy and help themselves instead of waiting for Allah, and after an ordeal the runaway raft was brought back to its fellow.

The Americans and British missionaries were forced to leave their home stations when the Reds headed into Kansu from Szechuan. They cut the Luanchow Sian motor road over which the foreigners might have travelled, and likewise there might have been difficulties about getting out by airplane. Hence it was necessary to take the cold and hard journey down the Yellow river to the railroad on goat skin rafts.

In Peiping the three children of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Derk had their first glimpse of a large city. They had been brought up in the wilds of Kansu, speaking a combination of Chinese, Tibetan and English. They complained that polished wood floors of their temporary home in Peiping were much too slippery to be preferred to the pressed earth of the Kansu huts.

FORMER UNION HEAD HELD AS KIDNAPER

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 10.—Sam J. Orr, deposed business agent of the Truck Drivers' Union, is in city jail in default of $6,000 bond on charges of kidnaping and torture, preferred by Gilbert Eichenlaub, Armour & Co. employe.

Eichenlaub accuses Orr of taking part in the attack upon him two weeks ago, during labor trouble at the Armour plant, when Eichenlaub was kidnaped by a group of men, bound, gagged and dumped out of a car on the Central square minus his trousers.

Love for Dick—or All the Wealth and Security Jim Could Offer—Which Should it Be? Modern Youth Meets the Problem Fairly and Courageously.

"You'll be happy there, Dick. You'll get well fast in the country air and there's a room with a good north light that'll be just the thing for you when you start working seriously again."

McClure Fiction

BARBARA drove slowly past the clubhouse looking for a hole along the curb in which to park but it was not until she reached the middle of the next block that she found an open space. She backed in smartly making what she was pleased to call "a perfect landing", and cut off the ignition; then she got out and walked back toward the clubhouse.

The Annual Dance of the Beaverbrook Country Club was already in progress; muffled strains of dance music filled the quiet street and Barbara knew from the number of cars, that the place would be crowded.

She walked rapidly, her straight litle nose and one corner of her mouth twitching slightly; she was very young, so the twitch had an odd charm. She was fighting with that threatening panic again and as she turned into the flagstone walk leading to the entrance her agitation increased. They would both be there, both waiting for her—and tonight she would be driven to lose one in order to keep one; since it was impossible to keep both indefinitely. And she couldn't bear the thought of letting either of them go.

In the vestibule she was greeted noisily by a group of young people who had been lounging near the entrance; then one particular young man took quiet possession of her, removing her jacket and smiling with shy, inarticulate friendliness into her eyes.

"Thanks, Dick," Barbara said breathlessly and running her fingers nervously through the short hair at the back of her head she looked past him into the lounge.

She saw him at once standing by the fireplace, his head inclined deferentially as he listened to Judge Frazier, her uncle, who was laying down the law from the depths of an armchair. The man did not raise his eyes. He must have been aware that the sudden clamor portended Barbara's arrival but he gave no visible sign.

She stood watching him, disappointed that he did not seek her glance yet fearing that he might. The orchestra struck up a new number. Dick placed a warm hand on her arm and said, "Come on, Babs, let's dance."

Barbara held back a little. " No, not now, Dick," she said half pleadingly. "I want to say hello to uncle first."

Dick looked back over his shoulder in the direction of the lounge. "Oooh, I see," he muttered comprehendingly. And releasing her arm he added with exaggerated nonchalance, "Well, it's okay by me. I'll be seeing you."

Barbara followed him with her eyes until he disappeared into the ball room. Then, her head raised confidently and a little arrogantly so that one might not guess how her heart was beating she walked swiftly into the lounge.

" 'Lo, Uncle John," she said gaily and bent to kiss him.

The Judge held her hand patting it affectionately. "You've met Mr. Forbes, our District Attorney, haven't you, my dear?"

"Jim and I are old friends," she said smiling, "though I'm afraid he hasn't forgiven me for making him dance so much at Janet's party last week."

"On the contrary," Jim Forbes said. "And I came tonight in the hope of getting more lessons."

Judge Frazier smiled on them. "That's right! Clever little girl. Teach you a lot you don't know about flowers, too — landscape gardening and all that sort of thing. Isn't that so, kiddy?"

"Oh, well, a girl must have something to fall back on. Mother says I have a passion for flowers but I think that dancing is my real passion," said Barbara looking at Jim Forbes.

"Shall we go in and dance, then?" he said, and taking her arm led her out of the room.

"Are we dancing this?" he asked roughly.

JIM FORBES struggling manfully under Barbara's guidance found himself watching this gliding young god with something approaching resentment. Dick was "showing off", and Barbara without giving him a glance was yet conscious that his new partner was no handicap to him.

"That was lovely, Jim," she said when the music stopped. They passed very close to Dick as they went out. He was beautifully engrossed.

"You're a swell dancer, Eleanor," he was saying. "I could dance with you all night."

"Listen, Barbara," Jim Forbes said after a while, "I've got to go in a minute. When are you going to let me drive you down to Hempstead? I've told mother all about you and she wants you to come down for the week-end. At the same time you could look over the garden and help me to re-plan it. What do you say?"

"Phone me about it," she said airily and rather rudely. But outside—"It was sweet of your mother to ask me down, Jim," she said, a note of humility in her voice. "Of course I'd love to go. I'm not sure about this week, though. Phone me anyway."

"I'll call you Thursday," said Jim. "Goodnight. And many thanks for the lesson." He pressed her fingers and was gone.

Barbara turned swiftly. "Dick! Don't be a fool! Someone might hear you."

Dick laughed. "Having eyes, they must have seen that you hung on to that darned old woman's coat tails to the very doorstep. Surely they don't need anyone to tell them."

"Mr. Forbes is my friend," Barbara said frigidly. "I'm sorry if I cut your dances for him but you didn't seem to mind very much."

"Oh, that!" The scorn was superb. "As a matter of fact, I never gave it a thought. Eleanor, you see, is that kind of a dancer—she makes you forget everything else. Will you have a cigarette?"

"Thanks!" Her voice was steady and he couldn't see her lips quivering. "Since you've found such a good partner you won't mind if I break our date next Saturday. I've half promised Mr. Forbes I'll go with him to Hempstead for the week-end."

"Of course I don't mind," Dick said. He struck a match, shielding the flame with muscular young hands that trembled a little. Barbara had forgotten that accepting a cigarette necessitated a light. Dick bent forward holding the flame close to her face.

"Why Babs! You're crying!"

NO PARTY was given to celebrate their engagement, nor was there an announcement of any kind. Barbara's parents were frankly delighted, for Dick, though only two years out of Boston Tech, was already showing signs of a promising career.

But Barbara would grow restless if either Dick or her parents tried to set a date for the wedding. "Why can't we just drive down to City Hall and do it quietly? It all seems so silly, anyway!" she said, and turning to Dick, "Don't you think so, Angel-face?"

"I'd like it to be tomorrow," Dick said clearing his throat, "if Barbara's perfectly certain she can put up with the poverty. For a while anyway, it'll be a case of love in a two room apartment and—"

"Nonsense!" Barbara put in with bright cheeks. "Give me a two room apartment every time and if you'll put in a few labor-saving devices I'll forego some of the love."

"I may drive down to Hempstead in the the morning," Barbara said, somewhat hurriedly. "Jim's mother wants me to—"

"Jim's mother!" Dick cut in sharply. "Why the devil don't you move down there and be done with it! You'd think she—"

"Why, Dick!" Barbara was aghast. "What in the world has come over you?"

THE CAR shot out with a jerk. Barbara watched it as it raced down the street and heard a moment later, the squealing of tires as it disappeared around the corner. She turned back up the drive feeling miserable and hurt.

And it seemed less than five minutes before Dick was back—brought back into the hall; and somewhere in the haze that blurred that moment of sickening unreality, a policeman's uniform, many people with grave faces.

"He drove right through the red light," someone was saying, "and was hit by another car. He was still conscious when we pulled him out, and asked to be brought here."

Barbara walked steadily into the room and looked down into the twitching face that had been washed clean of blood.

Mrs. Hutchins came over and gently led Barbara out of the room.

"Oh, Mother, it's all my fault," Barbara sobbed. "He went away hating me, hating me. . . I made him do it. . ."

The wedding had been postponed indefinitely, Barbara having refused with fine scorn and inelegant language to accept Dick's offer of freedom. But after two months of convalescence and Barbara's constant company, Dick's conscience pricked him.

"You're looking tired, Babs, and God knows you ought to be. You need a change badly. Why don't you accept Forbes' long standing invitation and you and your mother go down to Hempstead for the week-end?"

But the doctor too, had noticed Barbara's condition and, alarmed by it, ordered a complete change. Jim Forbes pressed his invitation and Barbara and her mother went for a week.

AT LAST Barbara came back—a terribly quiet Barbara forever gazing miles beyond you. Her gentleness to him was almost more than Dick could bear. It savored too much of pity. And where once she had gloried in the notice people took of them as she walked beside his wheel-chair, now she seemed to resent it.

The more Barbara became resentful of public sympathy, the more Dick's fears grew. She went riding more often with Jim Forbes and always came back restless and dreamy eyed and terribly kind. When the final blow came Dick told himself that he had guessed it all along.

They found a scrawled note when they came down one morning:

I can't stand it any longer. I must do something, so I'm going to Hempstead—I may be late but don't worry and for Heaven's sake don't phone or fuss. Love—

Barbara.

The day dragged on to its close. Mr. Hutchins was buried behind the evening paper and Mrs. Hutchins sat with an unopened magazine on her knee. Dick, his wheel-chair up against the table, was presumably absorbed in a jig-saw puzzle. But each knew the time to the minute.

Mrs. Hutchins looked over at Dick with tired eyes but her voice was quite calm. "Won't you let Mr. Hutchins take you up? You'll see Barbara in the morning," she said.

Twelve. . .Twelve-fifteen. . .Twelve-thirty.

Dick heard it first—the faint hum of a car, then the changing gears at the corner and the nearer hum and rattle as it turned up the drive.

"That sounds like Barbara," Mrs. Hutchins said calmly as if it were six o'clock and they were waiting dinner for her.

Mrs. Hutchins laid her magazine on the table and said: "Would you like some tea, dear?"

"Yes, please, Mother." Barbara was bending over Dick's shoulder. "How's the puzzle, Dick?"

"I don't seem to be able to finish it," he said huskily.

"Oh, I give up," she said impatiently. "They're much too hard for me. But you are clever at them, Dick."

Dick felt as though his heart would burst.. He pushed his chair away roughly.

"Clever!" he almost shouted. "That damned child's play! And that's all I'm fit for now. Heavens! I don't wonder you're all tired of me. I don't blame you. I can't see how you put up with me so long." His voice dropped to a hoarse whisper. "Well, tell me. Let's have it. I'm ready for it." He looked up for the first time into Barbara's face and his own was suddenly convulsed.

"Oh, I'm sorry, Babs. I must be crazy. Please forgive me. You've been splendid—one in a million—and I'll always be grateful that you stuck to me this long. I'm sure Jim Forbes'll make you happy. He's a fine chap and he loves you. God knows, I'll never be anything but a burden. . ."

"Jim is a dear," Barbara said musingly. "But I don't happen to be in love with him. So, my dear, you'll have to think of something else if you're set on getting rid of me." She laughed lightly and went on: "It was Jim's mother I went to see and I've arranged with her to rent that little place down by the river and turn it into a flower farm. For the work I put in on her gardens she's not going to make me pay any rent till next summer after the flower season—and after that there oughtn't to be any difficulty."

MR. HUTCHINS stood with his back to the fireplace. "You mean the place they call The Bowers," he said thoughtfully. 'I know the place. There isn't a soul living within three miles of it. Do you suppose we are going to let you live there alone?"

"Alone?" Barbara repeated. "Why, there'll be Dick of course, and a gardener. Mrs. Forbes is going to pay him at first and I thought that perhaps you'd let us have one of the maids, Mother. The soil's grand! It's bound to pay."

She moved closer to Dick, and slipped her arm around his shoulder. "You'll be happy there, Dick. You'll get well fast in the country air and there's a room with a good north light that'll be just the thing for you when you start working seriously again." She drew his head up to her shoulder. " So if you'll just name the day, I'll blush becomingly and lisp my modest willingness to become your beauteous bride. "

She kissed him quickly on the cheek and giving him a little push turned away from him.

"I believe I could eat something," she said not quite steadily. "No, don't bother, Mother. I'll get it myself." And with very bright eyes she left the room.

A great silence followed that for a moment seemed to deepen throughout the house. Then muffled sounds from the kitchen began filtering through the doors and suddenly the louder sound of a plate crashing to the floor followed by a sharp angry "Damn!"

"I wish Barbara wouldn't swear the way she does," Mr. Hutchins said with a frown. "I've spoken to her several times about it but it hasn't seemed to do much good. Well, son," he added turning to Dick with a smile, "that'll be your job from now on. I hope you'll have better luck than I've had."

"Somehow," he said, "it doesn't sound like swearing to me. You see, Mr. Hutchins, Barbara herself is so divine."

(International News Service)

A comparison is drawn with the career of Smith and another of Kent's sons who started politics early and now is governor of Ohio—Martin L. Davey. Smith has started as councilman-at-large, while Davey gained his first public attention as Kent's "Boy Mayor."

The youthful collegian was an outstanding member of the Kent State debate team, and was selected as one of four students from the U. S. to give a demonstration debate before the National Convention of Speech Teachers at New Orleans last winter.

His success at the election was due to a door-to-door campaign which he conducted before the primary and the general election to defeat six veteran opponents.

If hell is just, a lot of people are going to long in vain for the horns to stop tooting.

A Prophetic Vision

"Brass Tacks" On The Sunday School Lesson

The Golden Text

Luke 2:30, 31—"Mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people."

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above subject for January 12 is Luke 2:1-32, especially 25-25, 40, the Golden Text being verses 30, 31, "Mine eyes have seen thy salvation which thou hast prepared before the face of all people."

By DR. ALVIN E. BELL

CHRISTIANITY is a religion of song. It's "good tidings of great joy" fill heaven and earth with a sunburst of sacred song and we have the Benediction of Elizabeth upon Mary 1:42-45; Mary's Magnificat 1:46-55; the "Benedictus" of Zacharias 68:79; the "Gloria in Exelsis" of the angels 2:14 and the "Nunc Dimittis," of Simeon. Christ is the inspiration and object of all of these spiritual songs.

The "Gloria in Excelsis"

When in the fullness of time Christ was born of Mary in the little town of Bethlehem, it was not primarily because Caesar Augustus sent out the decree which took Joseph and Mary to the city of David to be enrolled for taxing. It was because it had been decreed in Heaven long before that it should be so. And Heaven revealed its interest in the significant fact which all the world overlooked, and proclaimed that interest in what God's angel called "good tidings of great joy to all people," and stated it in the brief compass of these few words: "Unto you is born a Saviour which is Christ the Lord." Having announced the fact, the significance of that fact to Heaven and earth was manifested in "a multitude of the Heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased." This Saviour, who is Christ the Lord, is the glory of Heaven and the peace of men on earth in whom he is well pleased. So "that peace which the world can not give" is found only in this "Prince of Peace" and in the ways of men who seek the things that please him. This angelic anthem was not wasted on the shepherds, for they came to Bethlehem and found their Saviour and "returned glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen."

The "Nunc Dimittis"

Forty days after the birth of Jesus he was dedicated to God in the ancient ritual prescribed in the law of Moses. It is interesting to note that in this ceremony Joseph and Mary elected to bring as their offering not a lamb, but, instead, the two pigeons prescribed as the offering of the very poor. He whose life has done more than any other to enrich the world must himself "become poor that we through his poverty might be made rich." At this ceremony, the aged Simeon, taking the Christ child into his arms sang of him prophetically "Now lettest thou thy servant depart, Lord, in peace; for mine eyes have seen thy salvation, which thou hast prepared before the face of all people; a light for revelation to the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel." He also prophesied that Christ should be spoken against and that "a sword should pierce through Mary's own soul," a prophecy fulfilled a bitter reality 33 years later as she stood at the foot of Calvary's cross watching that blessed life depart from the human body God had used her to bring into the world to be the world's Saviour.

He Admits He's Broken His 1935 No-Smoke Pledge

(International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash.—Vernon McKenzie, head of the school of journalism of the University of Washington, today claimed he had good excuses for the four times he has broken his non-smoking resolution, made one year ago.

At the time the resolution was made McKenzie said he smoked an average of 80 cigarettes each day.

On New Year's Day, 1935, he decided to quit. He did quit.

This summer, however, McKenzie took a vacation and went to Europe. That saw the four breaks in his resolution.

Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania offered him a cigarette and as a matter of courtesy, McKenzie said he could not refuse to smoke. He saved the stub with its monogrammed crown and brought it home as a souvenir for a niece.

Then in Berlin he met the Italian ambassador and for politeness sake he smoked again. The same thing happened with the Turkish and Rumanian ambassadors.

"I was about to ask favors of all three and I didn't feel it would be diplomatic to refuse their offers of cigarettes," McKenzie said.

However, McKenzie added with a smile, there was no trouble in keeping the resolution when he met King Carol of Rumania. The king, McKenzie said, smoked all afternoon and didn't offer his guest a single cigarette.

McKenzie says he hasn't smoked since he returned to the United States.

Big Increase In Tax Collections In Pennsylvania

Collections In State During Year Reach Total Of $244,355,727

By ARTHUR C. WIMER
Special Washington Correspondent New Castle News.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.—Uncle Sam increased his tax collections in Pennsylvania during the 1935 fiscal year ended last June 30 by more than one quarter, according to figures released today by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Collections of internal revenue in the Keystone state during the fiscal period totaled $244,355,727. This represented an increase of $50,363,153, or 26 per cent, over the previous year. In the country as a whole, on the other hand, tax collections climbed only 23 per cent.

Of the 1935 collections in Pennsylvania, $89,542,324 were income tax, $136,212,489 were miscellaneous revenue collections and $18,600,912 were agricultural adjustment taxes. These agricultural adjustment assessments were declared invalid by the supreme court last week.

With 7.74 per cent of the nation's population, Pennsylvania paid 7.4 per cent of total internal revenu, 8.15 per cent of income tax collections and 3.54 per cent of agricultural adjustment tax collections.

Oldest was the shell of a prehistoric bivalve that lived in Georgia 40,000,000 years ago and largest was a 10-inch shell from a bed in Panama Bay. Among the curious specimens were "pine comb" shells from the China Seas and "hammer" oysters, resembling a small tack hammer, from the Philippines.

Who Will Become Goat Of New Deal?

What Will Be Attitude Of Voters At General Election Next Fall?

POLITICIANS ARE MUCH PUZZLED

Central Press
Washington Bureau
1900 S street

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—What will be the political effect of the federal supreme court's terrific gumming up of the New Deal?

With NRA and AAA both in the discard, Democrats and Republicans, radicals and conservatives, executives and legislators are in general agreement that it now is virtually impossible to continue the game at all.

But who, principally, will be blamed by the public in the November election?

Or will the supreme court be blankety-blank-blank-blanked for nullifying the whole score just as the brain trusters were attempting to count it up in their own favor?

* * *

TREMENDOUS BOOK-KEEPING JOB

Anti-New Dealers prefer to think that the voters will hold the New Deal folk to account for having created a horrible mess.

Not only is the government at a point now where it must begin all over again; it has involved billions of dollars, in collections and expenditures, in a tangle of illegal bookkeeping that it seems impossible ever to straighten out.

On the opposite hand, the New Dealers' story is that all would have been well but for a reactionary supreme court.

* * *

POPULARITY CONTEST?

If a majority of the voters say, "The president has done his best and been balked by a few 'old men on Capitol Hill'," it may help him at the polls. But if a majority say, "The 'old men' have protected us against executive and legislative usurpation of authority,". it will hurt the administration.

* * *

THANKFUL FOR DISSENTERS

My personal impression is that there is a deal of popular respect for the supreme court.

And the New Deal's popularity has slipped.

The supreme court, to be sure, was not unanimously against AAA, but it was against it 6-3. If it had been against it 5-4, it would not have been nearly so effective. Unanimity would have been more damaging to the administration, which has a substantial dissenting verdict to be thankful for; still it wasn't an almost even split.

* * *

ONLY COURSE

Anyway, what is the administration going to do about it?

Its only recourse, to get its New Deal way, is to get the constitution amended, to prevent the supreme court from exercising its power (usurped, maybe, but established) to nullify acts of congress.

To secure such an amendment, and have it ratified, cannot take less than two or three years, and that's a minimum calculation.

* * *

BOTH SIDES SUFFER

The situation isn't ideal for the New Deal.

Sheep Sheds Are Damaged In Fire

Fire which started from a furnace in a workroom at the end of a row of sheep sheds on the Max Ludwig farm in Neshannock township did damage of around $200, Thursday afternoon.

The fire was discovered by Mrs. C. B. McAnallen, who resides at the farm. She summoned city firemen by phone from the home of a neighbor. The fact that the sheds were covered by a tin roof prevented the blaze from spreading.

Fire Chief James E. Thomas and the B. truck crew responded to the alarm and soon had the fire extinguished.

We have become worldly, but a large portion of America still hides the cards when the preacher drops in.

LETTERS TO THE NEWS

Letters Intended For This Column Must Be Signed With Name And Address Of Writer.

AN APPRECIATION

January 8, 1936.

New Castle News Company,
New Castle, Pa.

Dear Mr. Rentz:

The Lions of New Castle wish to express their appreciation for the publicity which you have given them during the past year. We are also greatful to you for the financial support which you choose to give us each year.

Very truly yours,
T. I. ELLIOTT,
Secretary.

PROPERTY TAXES

Editor, The News:

On January 5, 1936, the sheriff of Lawrence county sold 36 properties under the hammer. This was one of the biggest sales in several months.

If taxes on homes are not cut down to the value of the property soon there will be few owners left. What is the value of property? Well, you can easily find out.

If the sheriff would publish the assessed valuation and what it brought under the hammer you would at least know enough to invest your life's earnings in anything but a home or property.

Yours truly,
J. M. POPP, M. D.

Dismissal came following acquittal of Walter Schaeffer, stable exercise boy, who was charged with killing Mrs. Slivinski by running over her with Saunders' car.

Dog Aristocracy Of County Is Listed

There was a time not so long ago when there was an aristocracy of low automobile numbers in Pennsylvania. Comes the revolution in the form of a Democrat victory and poof goes all the low numbers.

The nearest thing we can get to that now is the low numbered dogs in the county.

With six thousand or more dogs to be licensed in the county there must be some kind of a distinction to having your pooch numbered among the first ten and The News is presenting herewith a list of the owners of the first ten dog licenses of the county.

Florida Weather Has Been Chilly

Mrs. K. C. Humphreys Sends Picture Of Ice Covered Tree From St. Cloud

TELLS OF HONOR WON BY MRS. RUPP

New Castle folks were not the only ones who suffered from recent cold weather, word from Mrs. K. C. Humphreys, of St. Cloud Florida, indicates.

Mrs. Humphreys, a former local resident in a letter to Fred L. Rentz, president of The News Company, included a picture of an Australian oak tree, covered with ice, which resulted when a garden hose was turned on the tree, with a fine spray running from it, to protect it from the cold. The water froze, covering the tree with ice. Mrs. Lyda Slaugenhoupt is shown alongside the tree, huddled deep in the fur collar of her winter coat. The picture was taken in a small park near the A. C. L. station.

Mrs. Humphreys states that Florida has been visited with unusually cold weather since Thanksgiving time, and during the Christmas season, the weather got down to 30 degrees, damaging tender vegetation and flowers, but fortunately did not damage the fruit.

Floridans suffered because most of their houses are constructed with an aim at airiness and ventilation, rather than to protect the residents against cold, and there are few furnaces, or steam heating plants.

Have Christmas Party

She states that they spent Christmas day with the McKay's, and dinner was enjoyed inside beside a big fire in the open fireplace. Besides Mr. and Mrs. McKay, there were present their cousin, Miss Williams, the Smalls, Bakers, Wimers, Mrs. Slaugenhoupt, Mr. and Mrs. Shellenberger, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Cooper and their children, and Miss Flinner, from the Butler road, Mr. and Mrs. Fields, and Mrs. Humphreys.

She writes that she had a call from Mrs. Leasure and Mrs. Richards, of New Castle, who drove up from Lakeland, with Mr. Thomas and Mrs. Schoenfeld, the latter of whom was renewing her friendship with Mrs. Slaugenhoupt.

New Castle scored recently, Mrs. Humphreys states, when Mrs. Peter Rupp of New Castle was awarded the prize for the best dressed "man" at the home-coming party of the Tin Can Tourists at Arcadia, deceiving even the judges.

Mrs. McKay and Mrs. Daley contribute the first snake story of the new year, each discovering a ground rattler near where they were sitting at Bailey's slough, a few days ago, Mrs. Daley dispatching the reptiles with an ax.

GARDNER

Mr. and Mrs. August Arnold, of the old Pittsburgh road, and their three sons went to Geneva, Ohio, to visit Mr. Arnold's father.

William Derr, of the Butler road, returned home on Monday night from Allentown, where he went to the funeral of his brother.

Mr. and Mrs. Calvin F. Clark, of the Butler road, and their father Henry Ohl, went to Steubenville last Sunday to visit Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ohl.

Mr. and Mrs. John Benson, have moved from New Castle to Gardner, their father Charles Benson, has been in bed for some time with illness.

Little Janet Louise Tanner, daughter of Mrs. Clara Tanner, and granddaughter, of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Weingartner, of the Butler road is in the Jameson Memorial hospital, for appendix removal.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Moore, of Gardner gave a New Year's oyster supper to a number of their relatives: Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Moore, and daughters Dorothy and Bernice, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Moore and Ruth, Betty and Doris, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Moore, Miss Gula Moore and Lloyd Shutts. On watch-night there was a party enjoying an oyster supper at the Moore home.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Reed, of the old Pittsburgh road, served a fine holiday dinner on New Year's, to their parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Reed, and the hostess' mother and sister, Mrs. Mary Scheidemantle, and her daughter Miss Viola, of New Castle.

Mrs. William Bender, of the Harlansburg road has gone to the home of her daughter, Esther, and husband, Rev. and Mrs. Irving Meirs, of Neptune, New Jersey, for a visit. Mrs. Maude Lamm, of New Castle is a guest of Miss Ruth Bender this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Elva Bowden, of the Neshannock Falls road, entertained their brother and family, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lesher, and children of Ellwood City, at dinner recently. Edward Vester, of Slippery Rock college spent the week end with Willard Bowden. Miss Alice Bowden, is teaching at Edenburg.

Rev. R. H. Flinchum, pastor of the Church of God, at Washington, Pa., and Mrs. Flinchum, were dinner guests of Gardner friends on Sunday. Rev. Alice Pearce, and Mr. and Mrs. David Long, all of New Castle were also guests at the same time and place.

Mr. and Mrs. William Donley, of Gardner, entertained Walter McFerren, and son, Walter, at dinner, on New Year's. Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Jones, and sons Donald and John, of New Castle.

Lloyd Overmoyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Overmoyer, of the Ellwood road has recovered from an attack of measles. Mrs. Overmoyer's mother, Mrs. Jacobs of New Castle fell recently and broke her wrist.

"I'M GOING TO GOD" CRIES MAN AND DIES

KOPPEL, Pa., Jan. 10.—Residents of this little town are wondering if Luther Allen, 51, of New Brighton, saw a vision of the Lord before he fell dead on the street Thursday of a heart attack. Chief of Police Frank Ferrigno heard a cry, "I'm going to the Lord, I'm going to the Lord," and found Allen dead.

CHURCH NOTES

NEW YEAR'S DINNER

Members of the Christian Endeavor society at Hermon, entertained the Sunday school and church members at a nicely appointed chicken dinner at the Willard Grange hall on New Years evening. Rev. Stanley Boughton was toastmaster. The program consisted of pep songs, Hawaiian guitar music by Majorie Walter and Opal Allison; exercise, Mrs. McElwain class; talk, Frank McElwain. After the dinner hour, the evening was spent in social chat and playing games. There were about seventy-five present.

MISSIONARY MEETING

Mrs. Nancy Blair was hostess to the Missionary society. The day was spent in quilting. A fine dinner was served at noon by the hostess, assisted by Florence Stevenson. Mrs. Ora McConnell had charge of the devotionals. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. May McConnell.

FAREWELL PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Stevenson and sons entertained a number of friends at their home last Saturday evening in honor of Norman Montgomery who left Monday for Vera Cruz, California. The evening was spent playing games and music. A dainty collation was served at a seasonable time by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Blair. The honor guest was the recepient of a purse of money.

A civilized land, if any, is one where you see newspaper portraits of the All-American wizards in math.

But it seems taken for granted that people have a right to take their own lives if they use a car.

WILL AID RED CROSS WITH BENEFIT SHOW

Arrangements have been completed by the ladies of the King Humbert Auxiliary for an Italian Show, which will be staged this evening at 8 o'clock in King Humbert Hall on Division street, for the benefit of the Lawrence County Chapter, American Red Cross.

2 Things to Do

TO EASE COLD INSTANTLY

Discomfort and Aches Go Almost Instantly This Way

1. Take 2 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets and drink a full glass of water. Repeat treatment in 2 hours.

2. If throat is sore, crush and stir 3 BAYER ASPIRIN Tablets in ⅓ glass of water. Gargle twice. This eases throat rawness and soreness instantly.

THE pictured directions above show perhaps the quickest, simplest and most modern method yet discovered to combat cold and sore throat.

Your own doctor will approve this way. Millions of people have discarded "cold killers" and patent nostrums for this modern way. It relieves the average cold almost as fast as you caught it.

Three Bayer Aspirin tablets, crushed and dissolved in ⅓ glass of water as a gargle. Gargle with this mixture twice, holding your head well back to permit this medicated gargle to reach the irritated membranes of the throat. The Bayer Aspirin you take internally acts to fight a cold almost instantly. AND — eases the aches and pains that accompany most colds.

Try this way. You will be amazed at how quickly you can ease a cold. Be sure, though, to get Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN tablets. They dissolve almost instantly in the stomach. Hence start working almost instantly. And also, dissolve thoroughly enough in water for use as a gargle.

Why BAYER Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop a Bayer Aspirin tablet into a glass of water. By the time it hits the bottom of the glass it is disintegrating.

In 2 Seconds By Stop Watch

A Genuine Bayer Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work. What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach — Genuine BAYER Aspirin tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Westminster Tops Geneva Five 35-16

Wesley Bennett Scores 19 Points For Westminster In Game In Valley

Titans Lead At Half 17 To 12, Genevians Well Bottled Up

(Special To The News)

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Jan. 10.—Westminster's towering band of Titan basketball players, paced by Wesley "Wes" Bennett, one of the nation's leading scorers, defeated Geneva College quintet here last night 35 to 16. It was the most decisive defeat that the United Presbyterians have ever given the Genevians on their home court. Out of the heat of the battle Bennett emerged with 19 points to easily assume the spotlight role.

The Geneva team fought hard in the first half of the game and it looked for a time as if the engagement would be another of those hair-raising Westminster-Geneva contests, but the Titans soon had the situation well in hand and although they led by only five points at the half 17 to 12, it was apparent that the Titans had the better of the two teams.

Titans Take Lead

The Conventers scored first, but with Backus's basket that tied the score, the Titans took the lead and never lost it. Krivoch's long shot gave the Titans a 4-2 advantage which grew to 6-2 with Bennett's etsy tip into the bucket. Bennett took another as Geneva added two fouls.

Krivosh was sinking his long tries and with the score 11-7, Backus took a cinch under the bucket and Willits took his time for a head shot. After a medley of free shots, the half ended 17-12.

Nothing could stop Westminster in the last period, Bennett sank three in a row. Crowded out from under the basket, Bennett went near the center and proved he was good on long ones too.

With a slight lull, Bennett maneuvered one under the bucket and added another from the floor. Backus dropped the last one in to end the game 36-16.

Airtight Defense

Doing the bulk of the scoring for the Geneva team was Hurley and Milanovich, both with five points apiece. Incidentally both of these boys are guards. The Geneva forwards strange as it seems did not score a field goal, which attests to the guarding of Krivosh and Hunneke.

The game was rough and fouls hailed thick on both sides. The Genevians shoved in reserves by the handful, but only six Titans were used.

Westminster	G.	Ft.	Tp.
Krivosh, f	3	0	6

Boston Red Sox Will Be In Thick Of Pennant Fight

(International News Service)

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 10.—Jimmy Foxx, Johnny Marcum, Rabbit McNair and Roger Cramer are going to make the Boston Red Sox plenty dangerous this year and make no mistake about it.

The authority for this was the venerable Connie Mack, who putting to rest the nascent idea that perhaps Mr. Mack's Athletics had sold Mr. Bob Yawkey's Red Sox four players whose best playing days were behind them—or somewhere.

"I won't say Boston is going to win the pennant," Mack said today, "I'd never go as far as to say that, but those four boys are going to put Boston right up in the middle of the race through the whole season."

Burman-Bath Contest Off

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Col. John Reed Kilpatrick and James Joy Johnston, wrought up over the refusal of the New York state athletic commission to sanction the much-talked-about bout between Jack Dempsey's "Red" Burman and Jack Kearns' Hank Bath, have practically withdrawn boxing from the Madison Square Garden schedule of coming events.

Tonight's entire show, which was to have gone on without the Bath-Burman contest, has been blue-pencilled.

East Brook And Wampum Quintets To Play Tonight

Section 22 League Lead At Stake As Schoolboys Battle At East Brook

East Brook High school basketball court will no doubt be packed to the very rafters tonight for the Section 22 floor battle that takes Wampum High's undefeated basketeers to meet the smooth clever East Brook high team. The preliminary game at 7 o'clock will keep the fans interested until the big game takes place.

Coach DeWitt Emerick has the East Brookers at the top of their game for the gruelling struggle that is bound to take place when Coach Hennon unleashes his Wampumites. The league leadership is the prize and the two teams will tear at it tooth and nail mayhaps.

Expect Big Crowd

Flumer will be a "marked man" tonight in the Wampum lineup. It was this swell little youngster who made 12 points against Shenango High. Wampum will have to watch Shuller and Hall, the two aces on the East Brook team. Both are dangerous men, and mighty fine basketball players.

The fans take their basketball very serious in East Brook and it would not be surprising to see the S. R. O. sign hung out early tonight. East Brook has had a great record to date falling only once to Fredonia, and have defeated some of the finest teams in this section, including New Wilmington, Bessemer and Union. Wampum has defeated Bessemer, Shenango and New Wilmington.

Following are the probable lineups for tonight—

East Brook	Pos.	Wampum
Shuller	f	Flumer
Kuth	f	Marshall
Kendall	c	McBride
Waddington	g	Fontana
Hall	g	Seals

Grovers To Open Basketball Card Against Ohioans

GROVE CITY, Jan. 10.—Bob Bingham of New Brighton, a freshman who was expected to start in Grove City's opening basketball game tonight with Youngstown College, will be lost to the club for at least two weeks, it was learned today. The southpaw forward became ill this week and left for his home.

Still uncertain over his starting line-up, Coach Bob Thorn now expects to use either Chatham or Donohue, from last year's squad, or Andy Petach, freshman from McKeesport, at the forward posts, George Petach, also a freshman, or Howard Swanson, sophomore, will be at center, and it is likely that Bob Frew, a first-year man, and O'Mahony, a junior, will start at the guards. Coach Thorn plans to use at least half a dozen others as he works out the best possible combination from his youthful squad.

Youngstown, which defeated Allegheny recently, is expected to be a difficult opening assignment for the Grovers, who have not had the benefit of pre-season games. The Ohio team has opened the Grover schedule for two years, providing real competition. This year the Buckeyes have played six games to date.

New Castle-Ellwood Game To Draw Crowd

New Castle Is Undefeated In Seven Starts, Ellwood Confident

One of the biggest crowds of the past several years is expected to pack George Washington High gym floor Saturday night when Coach Denny Schill brings his Ellwood City High "Wolverines" here to battle the undefeated New Castle High 'Read Hurricanes." The preliminary game starts at 7 p. m.

Ellwood City looms as a stumbling block to the streak of the New Castle team, that has carried them to seven straight victories this season. Sharpsville, Sharon, Grove City, Erie East, Har-Brack, New Brighton and Ambridge have felt the wrath of the hurricane.

Having set the Beaver Falls High Tiger back in his den last week at Ellwood City, the "Wolverines" are brimmed full of confidence that the New Castle streak is about to be ended.

Expect Big Crowd

The fans are warming up to this game like they always do for a New Castle-Ellwood City contest. The early birds will get the best seats in Washington gym. There is going to be a big crowd. Of that you can rest assured. Ellwood City is going to send a big delegation of fans here.

When you simmer everything right down, it may be that the game here tomorrow night will decide the Section Three race. It may be that New Castle and Ellwood City will battle right down to the homestretch for the pennant.

The new price list in case you haven't heard is 15, 35 and 50 cents. This price was agreed upon by the Athletic Council of Senior High.

Two Games At "Y" Saturday

Two games will be played at the Y. M. C. A. floor Saturday night it was announced by Henry MacNicholas today. The first game at 7:15 o'clock will find the House Seniors playing the First Presbyterian team. The second game will send the Castletons against the Tin Mill team in a league encounter. The first game is a non-league affair.

Evans City At Union Tonight

Section 18 Game Will Find Union Battling With Backs To Wall

Evans City High will play at Union High floor tonight in a Section Three game. The preliminary game will start at 7:30 o'clock according to a statement by Head Coach Davey Boyd.

Union High will have to win tonight to stay in the Section 18 pennant fight. One sectional battle has already been lost to Zelienople high. Union High has never lost a game to Evans City at Union floor, but there is always a first time, said Coach Boyd and if the Unionites don't snap out of it, the record will be broken.

The Unions can't seem to keep up the pace this year, in the first half the Blue and White clad warriors have flashed a fast attack, only to fall down in the second half of the game.

Following are the probable lineups for tonight:

Union		Evans City
Davies	F	Denbow
Ostrosky	F	Kinsey
Stevenson	C	Kaufmann
Wotowitz	G	Cooper
Pattison	G	Capella

Church League Games Tonight

Three fast games are on the books for the Church AA league at the "Y" floor tonight. The first game is scheduled to go on at 8 o'clock.

The Central Christians and the Epworth M. E. teams, battling for the league lead will tangle in the first game. The St. Nicholas and First Baptist teams will meet in the second tilt, and in the third game the First Christians and St. Michaels will meet.

I. W. W. TEAM WINS

Allison Ranked First In Group Of Tennis Stars

Helen Jacobs Of Beverley, California Ranks First For Women

(International News Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Wilmer Allison of Austin, Texas, and Helen Jacobs of Beverley, Cal., stood crowned today as the king and queen of amateur tennis in the United States.

Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, who defeated Miss Jacobs in the final round at Wimbledon, was not rated because of "insufficient data". She did not appear in a major American tournament.

Allison Leads Again.

It was the second season for Allison at the head of the men's list. The bounding Texan defeated the great Fred Perry of England at Forest Hills last September.

The remainder of the first ten in the women's division were:

Miss Ethel Burkhardt Arnold, San Francisco, who is now a pro, 2; Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, Cambridge, Mass., 3; Caroline Babcock, Los Angeles, 4; Mrs. John Van Ryn, Philadelphia, 5; Gracyn Wheeler, Santa Monica, Cal., 6; Mrs. Mary Greef Harris, Kansas City, 7; Mrs. A. By LESLIE GOULD
International News Service
Financial Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—General strength developed in the stock market today with a long list of issues gaining from fractions up to 5 points.

R. K. O., on which a reorganization plan is reported imminent, and Commercial Solvents were again leaders in point of activity, with the former setting a new high for 1935 and 1936.

Oils, still reflecting spread of crude price markups, rose into new high ground. Mining shares also were in demand, with Anaconda registering a new peak.

Bethlehem Steel preferred, on which a plan to take care of dividend arrears is being prepared, spurted 1½ points to a new high at 128 while the common gained ½ a point. U. S. Steel also was fractionally higher.

Commodities also showed a better tone, with cotton recovering 50 cents a bale and wheat rising fractionally. Bonds were firm but quiet.

Council Decides On New Project For Local Women

Will Sponsor WPA Project To Benefit 40 Ellwood City Women In Future

REGULAR MEETING HELD LAST NIGHT

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 10—At the regular monthly meeting in the City Building on Sixth street, last night Borough Council decided to sponsor a WPA works project for the benefit of 40 local women who are the sole support of their families and are on relief.

The plan was outlined to them by Dr. Rogers, supervisor of Ladies Activities of the WPA in Area 14. She stated that the federal government will provide salaries which will be $66 per month each and the material. The borough is required to furnish the room, light, heat, and the sewing machines. All of this can more than likely be donated as has been done in other communities and the borough can get away with very little expense. Borough Manager L. W. Monroe announced that everything has been secured except ten sewing machines to completely equip the sewing room for the women. All the clothing and articles made by the women will be distributed among the community's own needy under local supervision. After a short discussion Council passed the motion of P. R. Fike to sponsor the project as explained by Dr. Rogers. The cost to the borough for the year is expected to be $130.

A communication from the department of highways informed the borough that the state is taking over certain streets as public highways in the city after January 1. These were Crescent avenue to Fourth street, Fourth to Lawrence avenue, and west to Lawrence to the borough limits. The secretary was instructed to acknowledge this communication and also inform state authorities that Lawrence Avenue is in need of repair. This was suggested by Councilman Fike.

The cost of paving Hazel avenue from College street to the McCandless line was estimated at $6,697.20. The cost to the adjoining property owner will be $3.18 per foot front.

Borough Solicitor J. W. Humphrey announced that the damage case on Madison avenue will be on trial Monday morning.

Council decided to meet next Tuesday to elect Borough employees and in the meantime the finance committee was instructed to prepare an ordinance establishing the salaries and wages of same.

A resolution presented by Councilman A. J. Howell accepting the offer of the federal government on the grant and loan for the construction of a new city building here and the plan of financing was passed. The grant is $42,500. Councilmen McGlincey and Fike voted against it. The acting Burgess will sign the resolution.

Atty. Humphrey Is Rotary Speaker

Gives Interesting Talk On The Constitution At Regular Meeting

ELLWOOD CITY, Jan. 10.—O. J. Kemp had charge of the program at the regular meeting of the Rotary club last evening. He introduced as the speaker of the evening, Raymond Humphrey, who chose the timely subject of The Constitution of the United States.

Mr. Humphrey gave the historical setting out of which the Constitution came, showing how the independent colonies surrendered individual rights in order to have a federal government. He described the different parts of this brief document, including the bill of rights and the later amendments.

In conclusion, Mr. Humphrey referred to the difficulties of the present time, showing how the general provisions within the Constitution itself and the general provisions in the bill of rights, can be construed to support both sides of the contention which is going on today between those who would change policies of business with new laws and those who oppose such changes and declare them unconstitutional.

To the mere laymen in legal affairs it would appear that the only way by which any of these proposed changes may come about is by amendment to the Constitution. The address was instructive and interesting.

Howard Guy will have charge of the next meeting.

Ellwood To Meet New Castle High Saturday Night

Important Section 3 Tilt At New Castle To Draw Big Crowd

They will be followed to the county seat by a big turnout of students and townspeople.

Things have taken an entirely different aspect since two weeks ago. The Wolverines are being considered with respect and a serious contender for sectional honors by their opponents. This was augmented by their convicing victory over Beaver Falls high last Tuesday, in their second sectional game. They were tripped at Aliquippa in the first game, but displayed potential strength.

In the last three days the locals have been preparing an offense and defense to cope with New Castle's attack. The locals are conceding nothing to the County Seaters and plan to put up a battle that they will not forget. From a comparison made of the section games played by the two teams, there is every indication that the game will be a nip and tuck affair. New Castle with five pre-season games and two section contests, is out to maintain its record. Ellwood's record does not suffer much in comparison. They have four pre-season victories and one out of two section games.

Both schools will have their strongest lineups available for action. New Castle will have Carik and Mumford at the forwards, Grommes at center, Toscano and Covelli at the guards. Ellwood will have the five that have been clicking so well lately with Kraynak and Hauserman at the forwards, Flanagan at center, Marcus and Luxenberg at the guards. Mumford and Toscano are the most consistent players for the red and black and will have to be watched closely. The local two forwards will match them for performance. They work well together and have been consistent high scorers. Luxenberg is a brilliant floor man and can always be relied upon to pull his team out of a pinch at the right moment.

After last night's workout Coach "Denny" Schill appointed Mike Kraynak of amateur boxing and football fame, as captain for the remainder of the season, upon request of his teammates. Each of the first five members has acted as captain to date and were of the opinion that kraynak was the best leader and therefore made the proper move. Kraynak received a similar honor in football.

Declaring that small debts which they had incurred were keeping his customers away, Muscato decided to get his trade back at any cost.

Probe About-Face On Neutrality Late In 1915

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Senate investigators and members of the J. P Morgan banking firm fought hotly today in the senate munitions inquiry over the reason for the sudden about-face in this nation's neutrality policy late in 1915 which permitted Great Britain and France to float a half billion dollar unsecured loan in America.

Members of the committee traced the financial operations of the Morgan firm through the early part of the year, up to a sudden drop in the pound when the Morgan firm abruptly ceased to support it in August of that year, and contended the bankers forced President Wilson to change the neutrality policy through fear. The change in policy was made behind the scenes, too, testimony showed, and was not a matter of public record at the time.

Forced By Necessity

On the other hand, the bankers attacked this contention with assertions they stepped out from under the pound, which they had been supporting around $4.77 for months, because of necessity, and not by choice. George Whitney, who testified concerning these operations, insisted that the firm had tacit instructions from its client, the British government, to get out from under the sterling, because British credits with the banking house were running low.

Documents were introduced revealing that Morgan firm members conferred with the then secretary of the treasury, William Gibbs McAdoo, advising of the serious exchange situation, urging him to persuade President Wilson to change the existing policy of opposition to a public British and French loan. Following this conference, the documents showed, McAdoo wrote President Wilson asking for a change, and shortly thereafter, Wilson secretly gave consent to the loan, although he specifically refrained from public announcement of the change in policy.

"Weren't you using the exchange situation as a lever?" asked Senator Clark (D) of Missouri, of Whitney.

"No, we were not," warmly returned the Morgan firm member. "The exchange situation was in a serious condition, and we simply advised the secretary of the treasury."

"And in the conference," went on Clark, "did the Morgans advise him that this sudden drop in the pound came when J. P. Morgan, who had been for months supporting sterling at around $4.77, suddenly stepped out from under the market?"

"I am certain that the secretary was fully advised," replied another Morgan partner, Thomas W. Lamont.

Collecting Coins A Weighty Matter

(International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—In this port of strange cargoes, one of the strangest to pass into the Golden Gate recently was a huge stone coin from the Isle of Yap, consigned to L. W. Hoffecker, a Texas coin collector.

The coin is known as a "fei." It measures a foot and one-half in diameter, and is cut from limestone. There is no metal on the Isle of Yap.

According to denomination, these coins measure from one to 12 feet in diameter. Residents of the Isle of Yap leave their money in their front yard. They are certain it is safe, because it would require five swarthy natives to carry away enough to purchase a small pig.

A hole is cut in the center of the "fei" for carrying purposes. The portable stones are used in buying commodities from the wealthy chieftains of the tribes. One of the coins, if large enough, will buy a wife, it is said.

Bavaria Provides New "Official" Joke

(International News Service)

MUNICH—A comedy of the German civil service rivaling even the high spots of the recent NRA days in the U. S., is the joke of the day in Bavaria.

A 10-mark note was confiscated as counterfeit by the authorities of a small town in North Bavaria. The village burgomaster, in all due form reported the case in five close-written pages.

But when the voluminous file arrived in Munich, the state's attorney's office found that the bad 100-mark note had not been enclosed. A letter was dispatched to the Burgomaster, asking that the counterfeit note be sent on at once.

The telegraphic answer is now famous all over Bavaria. It read: "Already sent you the bill two days ago by money order. Burgomaster."

National policy of a great nation: Any course, wise or harmful, that will keep the most voters pacified.

Greta Garbo Fails To Offer Comment On Gilbert's Death

(International News Service)

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 10.—Greta Garbo was visibly shocked today by the death of her former screen lover, John Gilbert, and she gave vent to her irritation on the reporter who bore the news to her.

Refusing a statement, the Hollywood star at first showed no loss of self command, but when she was approached again at the entrance to her car for comment on the death of Mr. Gilbert, she burst out with:

"What's that to me?"
